PROMOTION FOR MR. McELDERRY
CHIEF SECRETARY OF ZANZIBAR
IN HONGKONG FOR TWENTY YEARS
(Telegraph Special.)

A former Hongkong Cadet, in the person of Mr. S. B. B. McElderry, has, it is learned to-day, been appointed Chief Secretary of the Zanzibar Protectorate, succeeding in that post Mr. R. H. Crofton, who was also for many years in the service of the Hongkong Government.

Mr. McElderry was in Hongkong for a period of nearly twenty years, from 1909 to 1928, his first appointment, after he had passed his final examination in Geneva, being that of acting Assistant District Officer for the Northern district of the New Territories. He held various posts until he was seconded for military service in the Great War, after returning to the Colony and being posted as acting Chief Assistant to the S.C.A. In 1920, he was attached to the Colonial Secretariat, and later became Assistant Colonial Secretary and Clerk of Councils.

OPIUM CONFERENCE.
In 1922, he was seconded for service in the Secretariat of the League of Nations (Opium Section) and in November of that year he attended the Oriental Opium Conference at Bangkok as representative of the British Eastern Colonies with regard to the opium question.

Subsequently, he served in various Government departments and in 1927, whilst on leave, he represented Hongkong at the Colonial Office Conference.

In the following year, Mr. McElderry returned to Hongkong, but his health became seriously impaired, and he was then transferred to Tanganyika as Deputy Secretary to the Commissioner, the change being made in the hope that he would recover his health. He held this post ever since. Whilst in Hongkong, he married a sister of Mr. G. N. Orme, a former Director of Education.

MARKED ABILITIES.
During his lengthy residence in Hongkong, Mr. McElderry won golden opinions both for his marked abilities and his charm of manner, and his transfer from the Colony was widely regretted.

Born in 1885, Mr. McElderry was educated at Campbell College, Belfast, and Trinity College, Dublin, where he was maths scholar and won his B.A. degree, being senior mod. in mathematics and in experimental science.

The new appointment which he has now secured represents a promotion, the post carrying a salary of £1,600 per annum, compared with £1,350 for the Deputy Secretaryship of Tanganyika.

PROTECTORATE.
Zanzibar has been a British Protectorate since 1890, and in 1913 it was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office. It is maintained under the administration of H.M. Government through the Governor of Kenya Colony. The Sultan is H.H. Seyid Sir Khalifa bin

DE VALERA WARNED
FURTHER BREACH OF TREATY
CONSTITUTION THREATENED

WORD IN SEASON
London, Nov. 14.
An important statement was made by the Secretary for the Dominions, Mr. J. H. Thomas, in the House of Commons to-day on the position of the United Kingdom with regard to the most recent developments in the Irish Free State.

He referred in particular to the three bills now before the Irish Free State Parliament for the amendment of the Irish Free State constitution.

Mr. Thomas said: "We are advised that this legislation conflicts in important respects with the Treaty of 1921 and its passage therefore involve a further repudiation of the obligations entered into by the Irish Free State under that treaty."

"We have already made perfectly clear the view which we take of this kind. Quite apart from any question of legality we look upon it as a repudiation of an honourable settlement."

SIGNIFICANCE OF BILLS.
"No modification of the Treaty can properly be made except by agreement between the two countries."

"But that is not the only aspect of the matter. The real significance of the Bills is that they clearly indicate an intention gradually to eliminate the Crown from the constitution of the Irish Free State."

Mr. De Valera has told us, as I said in the House of Commons on 17th June 1932, that his ultimate aim is the recognition of a united Ireland as a Republic with some form of association with the British Commonwealth in some circumstances, and for some reasons, and recognition of the King as the head of the association.

TOTALLY UNACCEPTABLE.
Any such proposals would be totally unacceptable to His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom.

Our view can be clearly stated. The declaration of the Imperial Conference of 1926 as to the relationship of Great Britain and the Dominions under the Crown must be accepted as the basis of the constitutional position of the Irish Free State within the Empire.

That declaration is clearly inconsistent with a state of things under which the Irish Free State would be a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations for some purposes and not for all, and would cease to be united with Great Britain and the Dominions by common allegiance to the Crown.

COMMONWEALTH MEMBERSHIP.
Our conception of membership of the British Commonwealth is something entirely different.

The Irish Free State, as a member of that Commonwealth is, as Mr. De Valera himself (Continued on Page 12.)

Irish, and there is a British Resident.

Mr. R. H. Crofton, who now vacates the post which Mr. McElderry assumes, served in Hongkong from 1903 to 1913, when he was transferred as Assistant Chief Secretary to Zanzibar. He later served in Tanganyika and became Chief Secretary at Zanzibar in 1928.

Mr. J. H. Thomas.

DUKE OF ATHOLL AT BOW ST.
LOTTERY CASE HEARING
COURT RESERVES DECISION

London, Nov. 14.
The Chief Magistrate at Bow Street reserved his decision in the case against the Duke of Atholl, who is charged with selling tickets in a lottery.

The Duke attempted to outwit the Lottery Law by inviting any one interested to send him a card, and then, receiving in return a carded ticket, containing no reference to a lottery or to prizes.

A good deal of money was subscribed and an announcement was made later of the prizes to be given to the winners.

There was some criticism of the scheme on account of the high expenses involved in commission to agents.

Counsel for the defence to-day decided to call no evidence on the ground that he had no case to answer.

The Magistrate disagreed, but did not indicate his decision on the legal aspect of the case.—Reuter.

BRITISH TRADE IN CHINA
MR. RUNCIMAN'S PROMISE

London, Nov. 14.
In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Walter Runciman told Mr. Rankin that it was not possible at the present time to undertake negotiations for the conclusion of a general trade agreement with China.

He was watching the situation and every possible opportunity would be taken to assist British trade in China.—Reuter.

ADMIRALTY JOINS BIG CRUISER BUILDING RIVALRY

AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX
NEW SHIPS TO BE BUILT WITH 15 GUNS
1933 PROGRAMME REVISION

London, Nov. 14.
Types of ships now being built by the Japanese and United States have compelled the Admiralty to embark upon a programme for bigger cruisers.

An official announcement to this effect was made in the House of Commons last night.

New cruisers for Japan are reputed to carry fifteen six-inch guns and the United States is now putting fifteen six-inch guns into her new ships.

Britain has been compelled to alter her policy accordingly. A new type of ship is to be designed. It will be a vessel of about 9,000 tons, and will be armed with fifteen guns.

FIRST LORD'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, announced that the Government had, with much regret, decided to revise the 1933 naval programme.

The revised programme had included one ship of the Leander class of cruisers, of 7,250 tons, and three of the Arcturion type of about 5,400 tons, each armed with eight and six inch guns respectively.

The policy of building cruisers of comparatively small tonnage had been adopted in the hope that other nations would follow lead.

Also in July 1932, the United Kingdom delegation at Geneva put forward proposals for a reduction of future cruisers to 7,000 tons with a maximum gun-calibre of 6.1, in the hope that this would be generally accepted.

Unfortunately, neither of these hopes had been realised.

JAPAN'S NEW SHIPS.
In 1931, Japan laid down two cruisers of 8,500 tons reputed to mount 15 six-inch guns.

It was learned that she was now laying down two more of the same dimensions and that the construction of yet another two, making six in all, was projected.

The United States also has already announced her intention of building four cruisers of 10,000 tons with 15 six-inch guns.

If, therefore, the British programme already approved were to be carried out, the new cruisers would be definitely inferior to those being developed by other Powers.

SERIOUS DILEMMA.
As was known, Britain's total cruiser tonnage was limited by the London Naval Treaty.

And the result was that they had been placed on the horns of a very serious dilemma.

If they proceeded with the original programme of cruisers, all the cruisers they would be building would be definitely inferior to certain of the cruisers which were being built by the other Naval Powers.

REDUCED NUMBERS.
If, on the other hand, they were to build any cruisers comparable

BRITAIN'S STAKE IN FAR EAST
OVER £100,000,000 IN SECURITIES

London, Nov. 14.
The amount of British capital invested in China and Japan was the subject of an enquiry in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. Walter Runciman, who was asked to give an estimate for the two countries separately, quoted an article by Sir Robert Kindersley which was published in the Economic Journal in June last.

Sir Robert Kindersley, he said, estimated that £63,000,000 of British nominal capital was invested in Japan, and about £40,000,000 in China.

From this total of £103,000,000, it was believed that the greater proportion, approximately £85,000,000 consisted in investments in Government and municipal securities.

AN IMPORTANT OMISSION

Mr. Walter Runciman pointed out, however, that these figures did not include the holdings of British citizens permanently resident abroad. This omission was very important in the case of China and it could safely be said that the British capital invested in China was very greatly higher than the estimate given.—Reuter.

NEW TERRITORY QUARREL

A quarrel between two peasants in the Pat Heung district of Au Tau, New Territories, ended yesterday, it is alleged, in one being fatally wounded.

According to a statement by Lee Sam-tat, the wife of Tang Chee, the affair arose from her husband quarrelling with the other man, Tang Kang, for striking a pig. It was struck in the chest with a stone, and this put an end to the fight.

In the evening, Tang Chee complained of giddiness, and shortly afterwards he relapsed into unconsciousness, remaining in that condition until he died.

The police, on being informed of the case, searched for the other man, but he has disappeared.

ART THEFT SENSATION

FAMOUS REMBRANDT STOLEN

WORTH £30,000
Stockholm, Nov. 14.
A sensation has been caused in Stockholm, which will echo through the art world, by the revelation of one of the biggest thefts ever committed in Sweden.

Rembrandt's famous picture "Jeremiah Mourning Over the Destruction of Jerusalem" figures in the robbery, which involved a number of other valuable paintings.

The owner, a well-known art collector, refused an offer of six hundred thousand kroner for the Rembrandt picture when it formed part of the collection of Dutch masterpieces at the Royal Academy exhibition in 1928.—Reuter.

U.S. DOLLAR WEAKNESS

SHARP RISE IN SILVER
New York, Nov. 14.
The dollar displayed extreme weakness yesterday in foreign exchange markets, standing at 60.67 cents in relation to its gold standard par, measured by three gold standard currencies.

Silver was very strong but sold off from the day's high at the close due to profit-taking. It was up 80 points at the end of to-day's session.

Rumours were current that the Government might issue over a billion dollars of silver certificates, using sixty-five cent silver as a basis.

The stock market rose sharply at the opening. In certain stocks, advances of as much as four points were recorded. Toward the close, due to the announcement that the California Railroad Commission had ordered the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to reduce its rates, utilities showed pronounced weakness, losing almost all of the ground gained last week.

The market acted in sympathy with this move and declined on substantial volume. It met with good support on the down side, however.

Wheat and cotton were steady. Great interest is being shown in the expected announcement by the Treasury which some think will renounce the idea of greenbacks and will strengthen Government credit.—Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

SOUND BRITISH FINANCES

MORE REVENUE: LESS EXPENDITURE

London, Nov. 14.
The latest Treasury returns show that ordinary revenue for the current financial year up to 11th November amounted to £243,092,774. At the corresponding date of last year, the amounts stood at £234,497,286.

Ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled £257,179,605, as compared with £280,280,106 up to the corresponding date of last year.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

LET THERE BE LIGHT—IN JUST THE PROPER PLACES!

Science Finds Varying Illumination Needed for Different Home Tasks;
Each Chair and Table Requires Its Own Lamp in Handy Location

Two end tables with lamps lend symmetry to this living room. Note, also, the tricky inside lighting of the secretary at the left.

New York.—With short days and long evenings just around the corner, remember it is the lighting your house has that gives it that inviting "Home, Sweet Home" appeal.

Rugs, drapes, easy chairs and ornaments you must have, to be sure. But it is attractive lamps, scientifically placed, that make the deep chairs bring longing thoughts of good books to your mind, the desk call to your attention that letter you just must write Aunt Susie. It is the lighting, too, that makes visitors exclaim over the comfortable looking house you have.

The children won't mind helping do the supper dishes half as much if there is adequate lighting over the sink. Later, they will get at their home-work with a will, if there is a special place, with the right amount of light thrown on their work, not in their eyes.

A Place For Everyone

We are entering a new era. Home means more to us now than it did during those driving, prosperous years when theatres, night clubs, a round of parties took us out night after night. To make home mean the most to everyone, there should be some comfortable spot, well-lighted, for every member of the family to drop into, to sew, read, play cards, write letters or play the piano.

Take the living room...in the ordinary home. If you must stop and figure which seat to grab when you must do some fine sewing, then it is not a 100 per cent, successful living room. Every seat in the room should have proper lighting.

Science is helping us solve these light problems. Research proves that a 60-watt inside frost lamp is the very smallest bulb that, alone and unaided, can supply a chair with a comfortable reading light. Twelve that amount is needed for sewing. Also Mother, Dad and some of the children may need a light of sewing strength to read comfortably.

Whether you use floor lamps or table lamps, certain things are required of them. In order to give proper lighting to someone sitting nearby, the lamp bulb must reach well above shoulder height. Sit down in the chair yourself and test out the correct height. That is the only way you can get it right. Shades are a matter of taste. But they must be broad enough to include within their circle of light the book or hand-work held in natural position. In general, shades opening at the top, throwing some light up into the room, create the pleasantest, mildest atmosphere. On the whole, neutral tints, yellows and ambers, give the cheeriest, sunniest, day-time effects. If you want dark shades, have them of translucent materials, and perhaps line them with colour.

Wall lights—always—should be shades. They are very annoying otherwise. For ordinary family purposes, wall lights should not have to be called into use. For parties, they are something else again and do add a festive gaiety to a room, particularly when people are on their feet most of the time, milling about.

If you have a davenport, use end tables with cheery lamps on either side. Many a davenport serves only one person for reading, when it could just as well accommodate two. A single floor lamp, properly placed behind the centre of the davenport, can be used instead of two end lamps.

After the davenport is properly lighted, what about the desk, the corner chair over by the bookcase, the piano, the chair by the library table? Each should have its own light. You can easily bring a wire around to the desk, for instance. With a light right on your paper as you write, you'll find balancing your budget grows much simpler. For the bookcase corner, have a floor lamp, or a little table by the chair, with a lamp on it.

For Bed-Time Readers

Every bed should have a good reading light, one that is placed correctly so that it won't get your head hot or throw shadow on your paper or book. There are so many contrivances in the market to-day that, with a little measuring, you can easily make every bedtime reader comfortable. Dressing tables, shaving mirrors, the kitchen stove, the icebox, every single centre of home activity, should have its own light, strong enough and correctly placed.

Proper home lighting means little effort, really. Just a matter of measuring, arranging, wiring, getting bulbs and shades. But, when properly done, you will find that you have eliminated squinting. And along with squinting goes much of the crossness, the uneasiness, the discomfort that your family felt without ever realizing it was due to poor lighting. For poor lighting defeats us, without our knowing it. Proper lighting is the psychological Polyanna in our home. It brings happiness where ever it goes.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart.

Your complexion needs stimulation and an occasional "toning up" just as the roots of your hair need it.

Sluggish circulation does not make for beautiful skin. Why not plan to devote a few minutes each day to improving the appearance of your complexion?

It is a thing which you must not overlook. Patting your skin too vigorously or using a too-strong astringent might injure the delicate tissues. But a reasonable amount of stimulation is necessary.

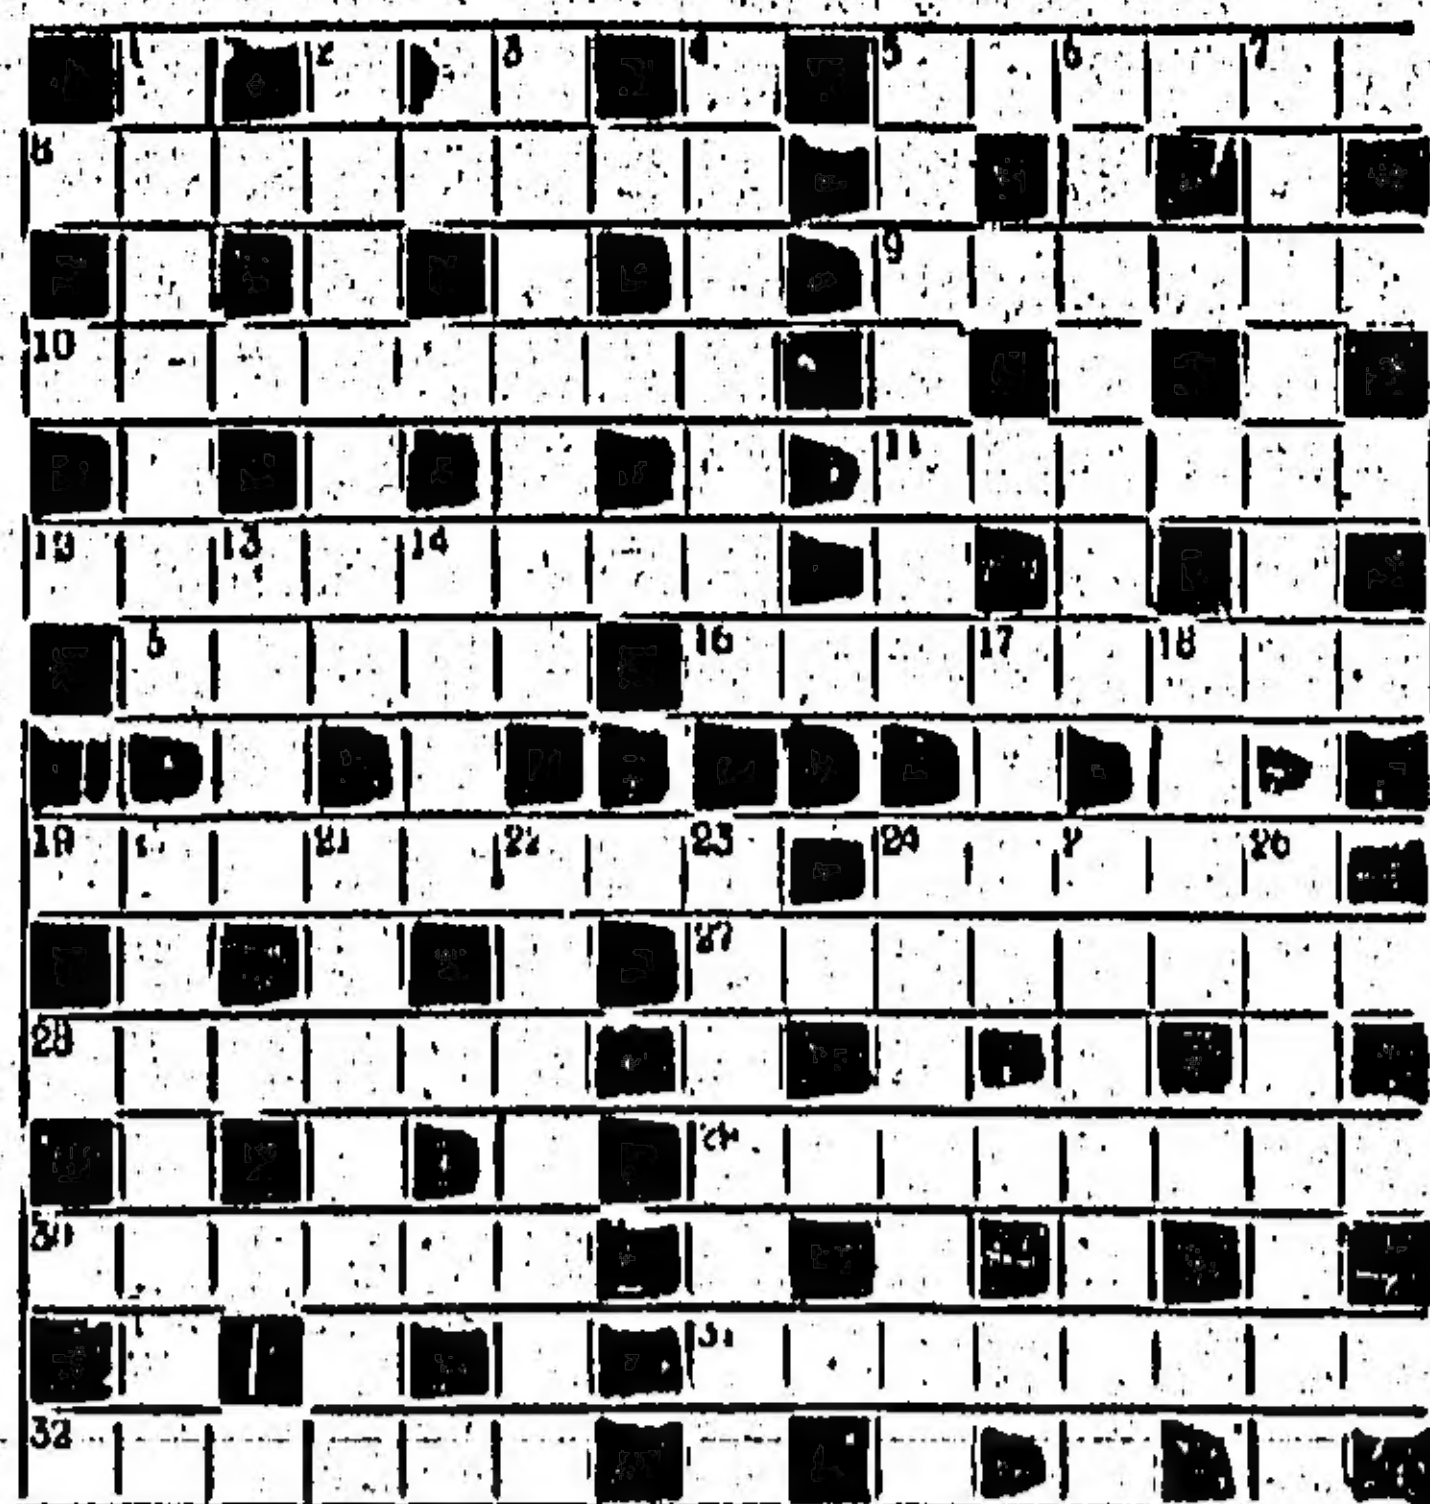

Skin toning lotions should be applied after you have cleaned your face. And they should be patted on. Part of the benefit which you derive from a good toning lotion comes through the method in which you apply it.

When you arise in the morning, clean your face with a piece of wet cotton which has been dipped in toning lotion and then in cleansing cream. Actually wash your face with the mixture. Wipe your face with 'cleansing tissues' and then pour a little of the lotion on the palm of each hand. Now slap the lotion on your face and neck with brisk upward and outward pats.

Do the same thing at night. After using cleansing cream, wipe your face and slap on plenty of skin toning lotion. Then apply your night cream.

The vigorous patting in conjunction with a reliable lotion will do much to improve the texture and colour of your complexion.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XXVI

"A Meeting of The Shadows."

In spite of their resolve, it is doubtful whether Napoleon and Guy could have retained their neutral attitude had not the events of the next few seconds occurred with such rapidity. As the door opened, the waiting man drew back his arm, and an instant later it shot forward murderously; but the intended victim was saved by a subconscious alertness which had been developed during the past few days—the alertness of a man who, standing on the edge of a great precipice, is constantly alive to the fact that somebody may come along and shove him over. There was a sharp growl as the emerging figure ducked. The assailant, overbalancing as his body shot forward and his swinging arm met nothing but air, stumbled desperately, and found himself embraced by two great arms.

"Let go, you devil!" he gasped. "Likely!" barked the owner of the great arms; and, while he held on grimly, he called over his shoulder, "Steady, Joe—put him down. I want you out here."

"Devil, devil!" sobbed the fellow on whom the tables had been turned. "You ain't a bad hand at being a devil yourself, Mirronneau," retorted his captor. "How the—this gentleman in question did you get here?"

"What's the trouble Smith?" came Joe's voice from the interior, and then Joe's form appeared—a great, hulking form, which case might have rendered flabby. But Joe had never enjoyed much ease, which possibly explained why he was now risking so much to obtain it. "Hell!" he muttered. "It's that foreign insect!"

"How did you get away from the boat, Mirronneau?" demanded Smith. Mirronneau glared helplessly into the rough coat against which he was being ruthlessly pressed. "Come along—answer me! How did you get away?"

"Ah, I am not to get away, no!" spluttered Mirronneau. "I am to stay here till I rot. I belong to you, is not that so? You can do what you like with me, is not that so? Keep me days and days and days, and make me to sleep—"

"Oh, shut all that!" exclaimed Smith, angrily. "Shall I do a little more to you? Break your neck, eh?"

"Go slow, skipper," interposed

Joe, in a slow voice. "We've got to hear what he's got to tell us before we begin breaking necks."

"That's right," nodded Smith, and again addressed Mirronneau. "Now, look here, Froggy. You're a fool, as you've always been. You've never got this right, from the start, and if you had you'd have saved a mint of trouble for the lot of us—"

"Animal! Cheat! Mon Die!" "Quiet, I say! Listen—I'm giving you your last chance, though you don't deserve it. You call me a cheat, hey? Well—what do you call yourself? You're the worst kind of cheat, because you're a fool into the bargain, and fools are a damned nuisance in this game. Why, of course, I'm interested in your little game! Who wouldn't be? And—even now—if you'll be sensible and share and share alike, it may not be too late."

"That's true," nodded Joe. "You can trust us, Froggy."

"Oh, I trust you!" cried Mirronneau, wildly. "I trust you very fine! I trust you to keep me on a boat, and to blow me up with zat dead man. 'Oo is 'ee? Nycroft, you call 'im! I 'ear you. And to bring 'im to me, when I lie asleep wis your dam stuff, and to make me go off my mind when I wake up!"

"Oh, you saw him when you woke up, then, eh?" enquired Smith, with a glance at Joe.

"Not ze first time, no. My mind—it is black. If I am bad, it is not so bad like you. I wake wis ze black mind—"

"You weren't intended to wake at all, sonny," murmured Smith.

"I know zat!" spat out the Frenchman, savagely. "You keep me just enough awake to begin—zose first days—but aftairs—when it is no good, and I do not do what you say—I must go to sleep for long time. Ah, but I am not a fool! I go to sleep quick on purpose, to make you stop and to give me no more of your stuff. And, when I wake up—He paused abruptly."

"Well—when you woke up, Froggy?" repeated Smith, watching him.

The Frenchman hesitated. He looked sullen.

"You know," he said. "I see zat dead man by my side."

Again, Joe and Smith exchanged glances.

"You said you didn't see him the first time," Joe remarked. "What did you do before you saw him—the second time, whenever that was?" Mirronneau did not reply. "Come along—what did you do? Did you leave the room? St. L. Mirronneau was silent. "Did you—"

All at once, Mirronneau found his voice. He broke into a shrill laugh.

"I will tell you," he cried. "I see zat dead man. Mon Die! I run up to ze deck, and—"

But again he hesitated, while Napoleon gently nudged Guy. Napoleon knew what the Frenchman had seen that time.

"To blazes with you!" exclaimed Smith, angrily. "What do you keep on stopping for? What happened on deck? Tell me quick, or you'll get your neck twisted. What happened—and how did you get away?"

Mirronneau grew calm, and shrugged his shoulders.

"Ver' good. I tell you—I go on deck and I see two men."

"God!" muttered Smith. And then snapped out suddenly, "You're lying!"

"Ver' good. I lie," agreed Mirronneau, and shut his mouth.

"You're a fool, Smith," said Joe, frowning. "We've got to hear about this. Lies or no lies. Go on, you," he added, to the Frenchman.

"No, I lie."

"We don't think you're lying."

"No, I lie. What good to 'ear me? Twist my neck."

Napoleon again nudged Guy, and Guy nudged him back. It was a wordless appreciation of the Frenchman—for having at last scored a point. Whatever the Frenchman's record, and it appeared to be a black one, the two watchers considered him comparatively spotless beside Joe and Captain Smith.

"Suppose I do twist your neck, you eat?" threatened the captain. "Zen no more words come from it, and you 'ear no more lies," answered Mirronneau, blandly. But the poor fellow could not keep it up, for a sudden pressure loosened his tongue again. "Ver' good—I tell you," he said, quickly. "I see two men."

"Who were they?" "Ow do I know? I do not know zem. And it is dark. At first, I sink zey are ghost. My mind is still black—black wis ze stuff you give me, and ze dead man shock. I fly. Zey try to catch me, but I am too quick. Zey go below—"

"The devil they did!" muttered Smith.

"Ze devil zey did. And ze devil I look zairo boat, and ze devil I come are. And ze devil I try to kill you, as you try to kill me. And ze devil I get 'old of your nose, and twist it—so!"

A cry of anger came from the captain, and for an instant his grip on the Frenchman relaxed. It was the instant the Frenchman wanted, and had planned for. Like a flash of lightning, or perhaps like the tail which the captain had called him, he darted away.

"Catch him!" shouted Smith. Joe blundered forward, but was too late. Mirronneau had vanished utterly.

"No—let him go," exclaimed Smith, as Joe was about to follow. "We've got to do some quick thinking. S'pose his yarn was true?"

"It must have been," replied Joe.

"Why?" "There was no reason to invent it. And it explains how he got away."

"Ah, that's right enough," agreed Smith. "All the same, Joe, I don't agree there was no reason for him to invent it. He'd want to keep us from going back to that boat, wouldn't he? Damn him! Why didn't he stay asleep, as he was intended?"

"Are you still thinking of going back there, Smith?" asked Joe, doubtfully. "If his story was true—those two men will still be on the blasted place."

"Well—we're two men, ain't we?" responded Smith.

A short silence fell. Then the captain barked out, "I'm game, if you are."

"We'd better stick together, whatever we do," growled the other. "You're getting sensible, Joe, in your old age! We're done if we don't stick together. With Mirronneau loose again, it's a poor chance we've got anyway. But there's one thing you've overlooked. We need money. And didn't something strike you about Mirronneau—didn't he give you the idea that—well, that he'd made a bit of progress on that boat? I'd damn well like to know what he did when he crawled out that first time, before he returned and saw Nycroft. He wouldn't tell us."

"You mean, he might have—"

"He certainly might have. And, if that's so, we may just be in time to nip in and finish the job. It's a thin chance, but it is a chance, and the only one. If you and I are going to get clear, Joe, we'll need

CHARGE OF MURDER.

DEFENDANT COMMITTED TO NEXT SESSIONS

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones, at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, Chu Lam, charged with murdering a Chinese woman named Fung Man, aged 65, at the Yau-mat typhoon shelter on the morning of September 11, was committed for trial at the next Sessions.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, prosecuted for the Crown.

Three witnesses were called by the defendant, the first, Wong Yu, being cautioned by Mr. Wynne-Jones who said:

"Before you start, I want to caution you and I want to tell you that the defendant is charged with murdering Fung Man on her sampan in the Yau-mat typhoon shelter on the morning of September 11. Evidence has been brought by the prosecution against him and he has asked for you as a witness. Now, you are bound to tell me all that you know about it, except that you need not answer any question which might incriminate you."

The witness declared that he knew nothing about the murder. He did not remember ever having seen the defendant while he was working at General Wong's orchard in the New Territories.

Two other witnesses for the defendant, Chu Woo and Li Chau, after being similarly cautioned, also denied knowledge of the murder, but admitted to having seen defendant working in the orchard.

Wong Wun, younger brother of General Gaston Wong, gave evidence that he acted on behalf of his brother in managing an orchard, which is being laid in the neighbourhood of Ngau Tam Mei, near Lok Ma Chau. He remembered employing the defendant, engaging him to work from September 9 until September 17. Defendant had done 'piece' work, therefore being able to take his own time over his work.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

Some stuff—not only for ourselves, but maybe to hand out." "Right you are," acquiesced Joe, half-heartedly. "Anyway, there's no need to board the wreck if we don't like the look of her. I say, Smith," he added, suddenly. "What about this other chap?"

"Afraid we'll have to let him stay," granted the captain. "He won't wake for a bit, anyhow, and we can't be hampered with him now. Come along."

Then the voices ceased, and heavy footsteps were heard trudging off. Napoleon and Guy did not speak till the footsteps had died away. Then Napoleon turned to his companion.

"Give 'em a few moments to get clear," he whispered. "Then we'll invade the cottage."

"Yes, but ought we to let 'em get clear?" Guy whispered back. "My darling, we're not paid policemen," retorted Napoleon. "I regard ourselves as voluntary workers, with a certain sense of selection which may be humoured. Didn't you see them? I'm not sure that even Dempsey wouldn't think twice. Besides," he added, "the police always like to take all the credit. They shall have it."

"I suppose those two men Mirrenne saw on the boat were you and Sefton?"

"Rather!" nodded Napoleon. "Imagine me frightening anybody! But they're likely to find more than two men this time, for Sefton and the Inspector have gone there with a crowd of about ninety-nine."

"Then they won't board the wreck?"

"They might not," "And they may come back?" "They might. Hooyay! But—" Guy held up his hand. A fresh sound now fell upon their ears. The soft chug-chug of a motor-boat. The engine appeared to have been muffled, and in the rising wind it sounded only faintly.

The chug-chug grew more distant, and faded into the darkness. Napoleon rose from his cramped position, and beckoning Guy to follow him, walked round to the front door.

"Damn!" he muttered. "Locked!"

DOCTORS PROTECTED.

PLAN OF COMPENSATION IN ACCIDENT CASES

London, Nov. 14. The second report of the Select Committee on Road Traffic Compensation for accidents and emergency treatment bills, deals with provision for payment of doctors and hospitals for services in attending and treating persons injured in motor accidents.

The Committee proposes that doctors and hospitals should be paid 12/6d for attending and treating each person so injured. They have decided that the best way to collect the money is to make liabilities on third party risks which are compulsorily insured.

The additional cost of insurance, it is stated, would be negligible. British Wireless.

FALSE MARKS.

"JAPANESE GOODS MARKED 'MADE IN MANCHESTER'."

Cairo, Nov. 14. Egyptian Customs officers are reported to have seized a quantity of Japanese cotton goods stamped "Made in Manchester."—Reuter.

"What about the window?" suggested Guy.

"God bless the little window," said Napoleon.

They returned to the widow of the room in which the two men had first been conversing. It took them only a few seconds to open it wide. Quickly, they clambered in.

There was no light, and Guy struck a match. There was no lamp. It had evidently been taken from the room. They crossed the floor, and reached the passage, and the match flickered out as they did so.

"I say—weren't we rather fools not to look for that hatchet?" murmured Guy suddenly, preparing to strike another match.

STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

—neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like

CHEVROLET

Why is it that every 12-cylinder and 16-cylinder car has bodies of steel reinforced by hardwood? Why is it that every make of car selling for over $4000 uses bodies of exactly the same type? Why? For the same reason that Chevrolet uses it exclusively. Because every test and every experiment has definitely proved: STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

The trouble with steel alone is that it stands just so much shock and punishment! Steel alone is also inclined to rumble and rattle. BUT—when you put the two together—a heavy, staunch steel body over tough, solid hardwood—then the hardwood reinforces the steel—and vice versa! And the result: the strongest, safest type of body, such as Fisher builds for Chevrolet.

WHO'S TO BLAME?

In a limited sense, there is some ground for the view expressed by Labour speakers in the House of Commons that the breakdown of the Disarmament Conference, and the serious situation which has consequently arisen, originated in the failure of the League of Nations to take action against Japan when the full implications of her policy in Manchuria were made obvious. But there is not the least justification for the criticism that Britain is specifically to blame. The blame has to be shared by the Powers collectively. To charge the League of Nations, as such, is absurd. The League, after all, is not a super-State, or a separate political entity. It is merely a conglomeration of Powers. If, therefore, as in the case under notice, the Powers fail to reach agreement on action to be taken against a member which is considered to have acted in defiance of League principles, the issues are only obscured by imputing failure to the League itself. It is a debatable point whether, had action been taken in the initial stages of the Sino-Japanese dispute, Japan would have changed her tactics. A point not to be lost sight of is that, even despite inaction, Japan decided to withdraw from the League, resenting the criticisms contained in the Lytton Report. To say that Britain has inferentially encouraged Japan to defy the world is to fail to get down to root causes. These causes will more likely be found in Japan's avowed policy in the East, elaborated over a long period of years and made plain at what she considered to be the appropriate moment, when the Powers were engrossed and preoccupied with their own problems. American re-armament and the strengthening of defences in Australia and New Zealand are therefore more rightly attributable to Japan's policies than to anything else. The failure of Britain, in common with other Powers, to put pressure on Japan, and the inclination to accept Japanese official assurances at their face value, may have been a factor in encouraging the Japanese militarists to go ahead with their plans, but it cannot be regarded as the dominant cause of the present situation. Admittedly, the moral effect of allowing Japanese aggression to go unchallenged has been disastrous, but Britain cannot justifiably be indicted as being alone to blame in this regard.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A NEW M.P.

The election of Mr. Kenneth Lindsay as M. P. for Kilmarnock is highly interesting as indicating the new trend of thought permeating the National Government. Twelve months ago, Mr. Lindsay would not have been considered eligible as a National candidate. Yet he fought Kilmarnock with the blessing of the Prime Minister, and goes into Parliament to join the Minister of Agriculture, the Minister of Transport and other leaders of the new school in striving for measures for social betterment. Mr. Lindsay has been the driving force behind the group calling themselves the P.E.P. and issuing a broadsheet called Planning, advocating Political and Economic Planning. He was the founder of the Oxford Union Labour Club and the first Socialist President of the Oxford Union. Small wonder that the orthodox Conservatives are wondering what place he can find among them, though they agree that he might have added brains and distinction to the Labour opposition. The fact that he sat as a National candidate reflects not a change in his own outlook, but in the guiding principles of the Government.

THE AMERICAN PICTURE

The American scene changes so rapidly that the conviction is growing that observers are not alone in their inability to foresee what next will follow. The President for two minutes at a time. To-day inflation seems the only cure for the monetary crisis. Then it suddenly appears that inflation will not be permitted at any price. An ambitious gold policy is embarked upon with the idea of depressing the dollar and the success of the manoeuvre is greeted with alarm, apparently because it succeeded beyond expectations. U. S. Government securities fall alarming in consequence and a flight from the dollar develops. And one section of Washington opinion talks of the introduction of inflation as the only way to save the situation. Just as though it could have any other effect than completing the picture of monetary chaos. The trouble seems to be that no-one is quite sure exactly what is wanted. And the danger seems to be that the rush to experiment will undermine every stable structure and sweep every theory away.

THE INTERPORT

The Colony's cricketers regained their laurels at the expense of Shanghai, with plenty of margin to spare, but the victory was not all satisfaction. Most of the real cricket came from the visitors. They were human enough to collapse in the first innings, suffering under the moral effect of Beck's first ball, but they showed how cricket should be played when given a second lease of the wicket. Hongkong permitted a Test Match atmosphere to be injected, scraping for their runs even when a winning position had been established. The one really bright spell of the match came when Donald Leach and his men decided to have none of it.

SPAIN'S ELECTIONS

The formation of a new Spanish Government with Senor Barrios as Premier can hardly be regarded as bringing to an end the political crisis which opened with the resignation of Manuel Adana. Indeed, events of the last few weeks made it abundantly clear that a new consultation of the people had become necessary and that the real issue was not who should govern but who should preside over the coming elections. Spain is not alone in attaching importance to the personality of its Prime Minister in an electoral period. Rightly or wrongly, it is considered that on the character of the ministry in power may depend the result of the appeal to the ballot box. Alejandro Lerroux, who formed a short-lived Cabinet, had made clear his intention of dissolving the Cortes. In his view, the Cortes had fulfilled its functions when it provided the country with a Constitution. Thereafter it possessed no mandate from the people. It had been given a specific task, and afterward its continuance was purely arbitrary. Nor can it be doubted that some of the Government which characterised the Azana Cabinet savoured of the dictatorship from which Spain believed it had freed itself. Substantially, the attitude of Senor Lerroux was widely approved, as was shown by the results of municipal and tribunal elections. Parliament had become divorced from the people.

WHY I AM LEAVING THE CHURCH

By The Rev. RAYMOND YOUNG

I AM 32. For more than six years I have laboured in the ministry of the Free Churches. There has never been a complaint as to the quality of my preaching or my devotion to my ministry.

My character has never been impugned. I have laboured as hard and as zealously as I know.

Yet at 32, with what I believe to be years of activity ahead of me, I have become a spiritual wail. I have resigned my pastorate, and go out into the wilderness, so to speak.

What I regard as sheer bigotry and petty-mindedness have overcome my endeavours.

I leave as a protest. Our fathers, the sturdy Independents, established the Free Churches on their own devout protest against bigotry and obscurantism.

But the spirit of protest has gone from them in many cases. The Churches have lost their guts. They are dominated by women. If the minister be a man, if he has the instincts and the tolerance of a vital man, he must conceal them.

His utterances in the pulpit, his every-day talk, in my opinion, must be regulated by the gossip of his congregation.

Once he is in the ministry, and the longer he remains, the shackles of prejudice and malice grow heavier.

A man loses any value he may have in the labour market. The bread and butter of his wife and family depend upon his subservience.

A man becomes sorely tempted in such circumstances to abandon his own independence.

But my own protest has become inevitable.

Events of the last few months have pushed the question of total abstinence and temperance into the forefront of my dispute. I drink very little. But I believe that wine is one of God's good gifts to man. I believe also that a man may find consolation and help in an occasional friendly glass of wine or beer.

I abhor undue indulgence as much as any right-thinking man. But that does not blind me to the fact that a vigorous, robust man demands his diversions in fashions which do not appeal to women and busybodies.

It does not make me believe that an occasional glass of beer is one of the stigmata of immorality.

The Church is Ruled by a Monstrous Army of Women,
Says the Rev. Raymond
Young

Nor does it make me believe that total abstinence from strong drink should be exalted into a cardinal Christian virtue.

The Kingdom of Heaven is as much open to the man of robust thinking as it is to the feeble of this world. The little people who mistake prejudice for faith, and unctuous piety for robust honesty have no monopoly of the love of God, and are, in fact, strangers to it.

Yet for holding that belief and for saying so from my pulpit I have suffered ostracism from all parts of the country.

A year ago I preached a civic sermon. I pleaded then for tolerance for the moral judgment and personal habits of others.

I told them that a little drink would harm no healthy man. I exhorted them to show a little measure of the tolerance upon whose firm rock our Church was built.

I had good authority for my view. The Christian faith has been built up on the devotion of the virile man as much as it has on "refined" piety.

But my plea was answered with a swift outbreak of rebuke.

The Free Churches of this district arrange an annual exchange of pulpits. Very soon after I delivered that sermon I was called upon by two ministers. They informed me that I should no longer be welcome in any other pulpit.

All this meant that I was to be ostracised.

I was to be meted out with the fate that awaits any man who protests against intolerance and the self-complacent assumption of virtue and Christian grace.

This question of drink has been forced upon me in recent events.

It is only an incident in the general protest against the petty-mindedness which dominates the Free Churches. But the storm of abuse which my sermon evoked was astonishing.

Letters poured in. They were disgracefully abusive.

The uproar which ensued would have led you to believe that I had denied the existence of God. It was the beginning of the end of my official ministry.

In my opinion the Christian instincts of the parsons are being stifled. All over the country the ministers are disturbed.

They can see the consequences of this baleful pettiness and spite. They know that it is the real reason of churches being empty.

They know that their services are muzzled by the incessant dread that the bias which rules their church may deprive them of their living.

There are honourable exceptions. Pious hypocrisy is not characteristic of all churchgoers. But the people of whom I have been speaking hold the predominant influence. We are ruled by a monstrous regiment of women.

That is why I am going out from my church. My own congregation has been kind. But I have been overwhelmed with the self-complacency which has come to rule the churches as a whole. The sinister hold is growing every day more strong.

I do not propose to abandon my services of the Faith.

I hope to run weekly services in a cinema. The music will be as good as I can make it. The choir, I hope, will be an all-male one.

I shall deliver not a sermon, but an address. I shall try with the utmost of my capability to talk to

INTERPORT TRAGEDY

By Eddie "Long Stop" Kelly

SHANGHAI, we read, was put on the spot by Hongkong in yesterday's interport cricket.

It is useless the Shanghai players using recriminations against each other now. The damage is done.

Most of Shanghai's ill-luck, we understand, was due to the crumbling wicket. It's no use, however, Shanghai blaming Hongkong for this. They should blame their wicket-keeper. Alotted the job of keeping the wicket, he fell down on the task.

Furthermore, things are coming to a pretty pass in cricket when a man cannot keep a miserable wicket clean.

We are afraid that modern cricketers are more concerned about displaying their leg before the wicket than looking after the thing.

We are forced to admit, however, that several Hongkong players displayed a lack of sportsmanship. Young Pearce, for instance, deliberately knocked down the little corks, placed in the ground for the protection of the Shanghai wicket-keeper, no less than six times.

Whether he did this in a spirit of malice or from a misguided sense of humour is not recorded.

Another unsportsmanlike act on the part of Hongkong was forcing Shanghai to pay for 23 of their runs, no less than that number of buys being recorded against the northern visitors.

Persela was also guilty of tactlessness in dismissing young Mister Leach for a measly 2.

Did he stop and think a minute before he did this? Did he think of young Mr. Leach's friends?

What will Mr. Leach's mother, wife, sweetheart and sisters say? After all, our guests come from Shanghai, which is not British territory. Where is our vaunted British fair play?

But all these unsportsmanlike acts fade into insignificance compared with the one that occurred at 4 p.m.

"At four o'clock (we read) an adjournment was made for tea." TEA! Hongkong offered tea to our guests!

Words fail us. TEA! Passes! "Shanghai—adverb, singular, present."

R.S.V.P.

Mr. Edward Kelly regrets that owing to the shroffs becoming so insistent this month it is impossible for him to get his dinner suit out of pawn in time to accept Mr. and Mrs. Whateasth's kind invitation to a party Saturday.

PEPPERED

A kiss may be mildly pernicious. Meandering, sacred, or vicious. It may be a peck. On the husbandly neck. Or a sibilant sip that's delicious; But when I am fed up or jaded, With the average thing that has faded, It's then— That I dream of the kiss Of a sweet Hongkong miss, Whose muscles and riotous Arteries hiss With a liberal dash Of cayenne!

the people who will listen to no not of dry-as-dust dogma of authority, but of the things which concern them every day.

I shall invite them to put questions to me when I have sat down. That is one of the defects of our present church organisation.

You can never talk back at the parson. It is assumed that he is the one man who knows.

I shall not be afraid of the things which the normal man likes. His church will be my church. He is the man to whom I want to minister.

I feel that I am without the pale. But I shall fight prejudice with all the strength which God in His mercy will vouchsafe to me.

IT WAS LUCKY SHANGHAI NEEDED 350 RUNS TO WIN

VISITORS HONOURABLY DEFEATED

BRAVE EFFORT IN FACE OF GIGANTIC TASK

VALUABLE PARTNERSHIPS BROKEN BY ALEC PEARCE

PLAYED FOR BATTING: COMES OFF WITH THE BALL

(By R. Abbit)

IN my notes of yesterday I had conjectured that Hongkong might add another fifty and that they would be out in time to give Shanghai a short period of batting before the luncheon interval.

Actually they got sixty-three and set Shanghai three hundred and fifty to win, and gave them, half an hour's batting before tiffin. No wicket fell however.

I also said that Shanghai would have to bat on a very bad wicket and here I was wrong, for, as it sometimes does, the wicket definitely improved and the Visitors played their fourth innings on a wicket which played very nearly as well as it did in the first.

And a very gallant fight they made of it. I fancy most of us felt glad that it was not too hundred and fifty that they required.

AN UPHILL FIGHT.

The first danger that threatened them was the loss of a wicket before lunch, but this Simpson and Stokes managed to avert. They very wisely played defensive cricket, and resumed the same tactics after lunch. But at twenty-eight Owen Hughes tried Pearce and Simpson just touched what was, to him, a leg break.

But for a long time this was the sum total of success and with eighty runs on the board things looked a bit ominous and nasty sums in subtraction were done by the pessimists.

However the answer was still two hundred and seventy more, and then Alec Pearce again came to the rescue, and broke one back, bowling round the wicket, to get Madar L.b.w., and two were down. The last shade of anxiety one had was when Stokes and Booth seemed to have dug themselves in.

But at last Stokes' fine innings came to an end, though I think the bowler was lucky to get the decision.

Leach came in to attempt a come-back but when he was caught at the wicket of one of Pereira's fastest almost immediately all was over bar the shouting.

SAM SMITES.

But there was plenty of shouting to come. People had been talking about Pearce's big hitting when he made thirty or so, and pulled off the match by one wicket in 1926.

One wretched fellow (I hope and believe that he came from Shanghai) had remarked that Sam hadn't made any runs since. A libel of course but the left-hander was out to show them he could hit. And he certainly did. Making most of his runs by smashing hits he scored for the greater part on the off, though his six off Pearce was an on drive to the Law Courts. He had some luck of course as he should have been caught in front of the public stand when he had not reached ten, but it was a very nasty catch. The fun was too good to last, but during the quarter of an hour for which it did last he collected forty runs.

THE LAST WICKET.

Even when Torry was stumped at two hundred and one and Shanghai were dead Mayhew and T. Madar refused to lie down and kept the last wicket going for nearly three-quarters of an hour. But Pearce as usual came to the rescue and got Madar to return one to him when the score still was a hundred and seventeen runs in arrears.

Both men had batted uncommonly well. Indeed the more one saw of the second innings the less one understood how Shanghai gave such an inglorious display in the first. The only explanation is that they were thoroughly rattled by the first ball dismissing one of their best batsmen.

A SUCCESS.

Hongkong and Harry Owen Hughes are to be congratulated on a brilliant success.

I do not propose to deal at present with the collective or individual merits of the teams. That will be done in articles written after the Malaya-Shanghai match.

But I cannot refrain from congratulating my old friend Tom Hayward very heartily on his brilliant success both with the bat, and as a first slip, a position in which he has not held for years and years.

Batting like his and Teddy Fincher's—was just what was wanted to stiffen the side. Pearce's fine bowling—six for seventy on a fairly good wicket—calls for high praise and if he did not get as many with the bat as was expected, he certainly got far more wickets.

MALAYA vs. SHANGHAI.

To-day Malaya take on Shanghai and I do not know if their long wait will have done them any good. At the time of writing I do not know if there is any change in the side.

Of course the logical result is easy to work out. Malaya beat Hongkong. Hongkong beat Shanghai. Therefore a fortiori Malaya will beat Shanghai.

But I'm not so sure about it and unless R.N. Hamilton can pull out a couple of big innings I rather think that the result will be the other way. Anyway it will be a most interesting game for those who can get off to see it!

I have been asked to remind those interested that the Interport Dinner will be held on Friday evening at the Gloucester Building. Lists are posted in the Hongkong and Kowloon Cricket Clubs.

PLAYERS ENTERTAINED

Musical Programme at Cricket Club

Members of the Hongkong, Shanghai and Malaya Interport Cricket teams attended a concert at the Hongkong Cricket Club last night. A large gathering of members of the Hongkong Cricket Club and several ladies were also present.

The "Lincoln Imps" orchestra first held the stage, and rendered three jazz tunes which were well received by the gathering, after which the "Hongkong Cricket Club Crooners" gave some selections from Gilbert and Sullivan.

The tit-bit of the evening was a humorous monologue and songs by Rev. Lewis Bryan, which was loudly applauded. Mr. Hyde-Lay also rendered a song, and several other items were contributed by other gentlemen. Mr. G. W. Tru, showed his marvellous technique at the piano, by giving a few delightful dance music tunes.

(By "Veritas").

Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Mary Heeley, England's two leading women tennis players, are due to arrive in Hongkong on the P. and O. Comorin at 6 o'clock Friday morning.

I understand the Lawn Tennis Association are in communication with the players with a view to their appearing in exhibition matches on Friday afternoon. The L.T.A. are at present awaiting a reply from the two ladies. According to information received from Shanghai, there is every reason to believe that they will be willing to play.

K.C.C. PROBABLE VENUE.

Unfortunately their visit clashes with the Malaya v. Shanghai Interport cricket match, and there seems little chance of the tennis, if arranged, being played on the Hongkong Cricket Club.

The Kowloon Cricket Club, however, have offered the use of their ground for Friday afternoon. No details as to the probable programme are yet available, although

HOW I SAW IT FROM THE PRESS BOX

(By "The Pilgrim")

IT was just as a section of the men-ber's pavilion were discussing big hitters they had known, that Sam Isaacs of Shanghai walked to the wicket yesterday and gave the crowd, watching the Interport struggle between Hongkong and Shanghai, the biggest thrill of the whole match.

SHADES of Jesop! With a mighty swing of the bat (but rhythmical mind you not blind) he fairly knocked the cover off the ball to score 40 runs in 15 minutes.

HE was no respecter of persons or reputations. The fact that Pearce had kept the batsmen tied down for an hour and a half before that Pereira had captured Leach's wicket with a beautiful ball. These did not count with Isaacs. He proceeded to hit Pearce for a six and three fours; hit Pearce nine runs in three balls off Beck, and a couple of fours off Pereira.

LIVES? Yes, he had three, and Pereira was the guilty party in each case. But weren't the crowd delighted to see him dropped? The more strokes and boundaries that Isaacs could collect, the better pleased were they.

PEARCE was the chief sufferer. Isaacs should have been out after he had scored his first nine off Beck, Pereira, folding out in the country failed to get under a very high hit, and although he got his hands to the ball, it wouldn't stick. In the same over he missed another chance, although in this instance he partially lost sight of the ball through Owen Hughes also running for the catch. His third blunder was quite inexcusable, receiving the ball at forward short leg.

BUT apart from these let-offs, it was a grand innings and did much to stimulate the waning interest of the onlookers. Although his big hitting suggests that Isaacs did nothing but slash at the ball, this is far from being correct. Isaacs reminded me very vividly of George Collins, the former Kent left handed cricketer. His stance and strokes were almost identical, and Collins very often indulged in a first class standard of batting!

THE luck was not entirely with Shanghai in this last innings. Stokes, for instance, had every cause to be dissatisfied with his dismissal. A very half-hearted appeal for L.b.w. by Pearce met with an affirmative response. From the press box it looked as though the ball had pitched well outside of the stumps. In addition to which Stokes was distinctly hit on the thigh.

AT the time too, he was batting with the utmost confidence. He had passed his 50 and looked good enough for another. Although I wouldn't go so far as to suggest that had he remained Hongkong would not have won, I feel pretty confident that there would have been considerably less than 117 runs in it at the close.

FRANKLY Shanghai were definitely getting on top when Stokes was given marching orders. He and Booth had sent the total along to 110, two wickets only having fallen.

They were both playing the bowling well and scoring whenever the opportunity presented itself. The dismissal of Stokes altered the whole trend of the game.

BUT the end was finally brought in sight when Minu accomplished a very smart piece of fielding to run out Booth. He gathered the ball and hit the wicket in the one movement, Booth being out by feet.

THE wicket rarely appeared difficult. Even Pereira and Beck rose only a few inches above stump height. But there was real quality about the Hongkong attack. I consider that Alec Pearce's bowling both against Malaya and Shanghai has so far been the most outstanding in the series.

PEARCE has a delightful action, flights the ball well, is not afraid to "pitch 'em up", and can turn or go straight through with cleverly concealed deliveries. Yesterday's figures were very unfair to him.

ALTHOUGH Shanghai redeemed themselves, it cannot be said that they ever reached expectations. Only Donald Leach and Isaacs bowled with any consistent accuracy. Leach to Shanghai was as Pearce to Hongkong. The batting was fair to middling. The cheap dismissals of Pat Madar considerably helped the local team. Yet of those expected to make the runs, only Leach on Monday and Stokes yesterday came off.

IT is probably unfair to suggest that Shanghai were too confident of victory. But I think they felt their attack was good enough to get Hongkong out for less than 150 in both innings, and when this was disproved, their batting went to pieces.

OWEN Hughes has every reason to look back to the 1933 Interport with pride and satisfaction. His work as a captain, bowler, batsman and fielder was above reproach. If there was a tendency to persist a little too much with Pearce, the shortcoming, if such it be felt, was offset by the manner in which he handled his fast bowlers. Anyhow Pearce was always bowling well enough to justify an extra over.

ALTOGETHER an entertaining match, with the high spots, Fincher's innings on Saturday, Leach's fighting knock on Monday, Pearce's and Minu's bowling, Hayward's clever innings, and the Hongkong fielding.

FAR EAST INTERPORT RIFLE MATCH

Hongkong Team Picked: Navy Predominate

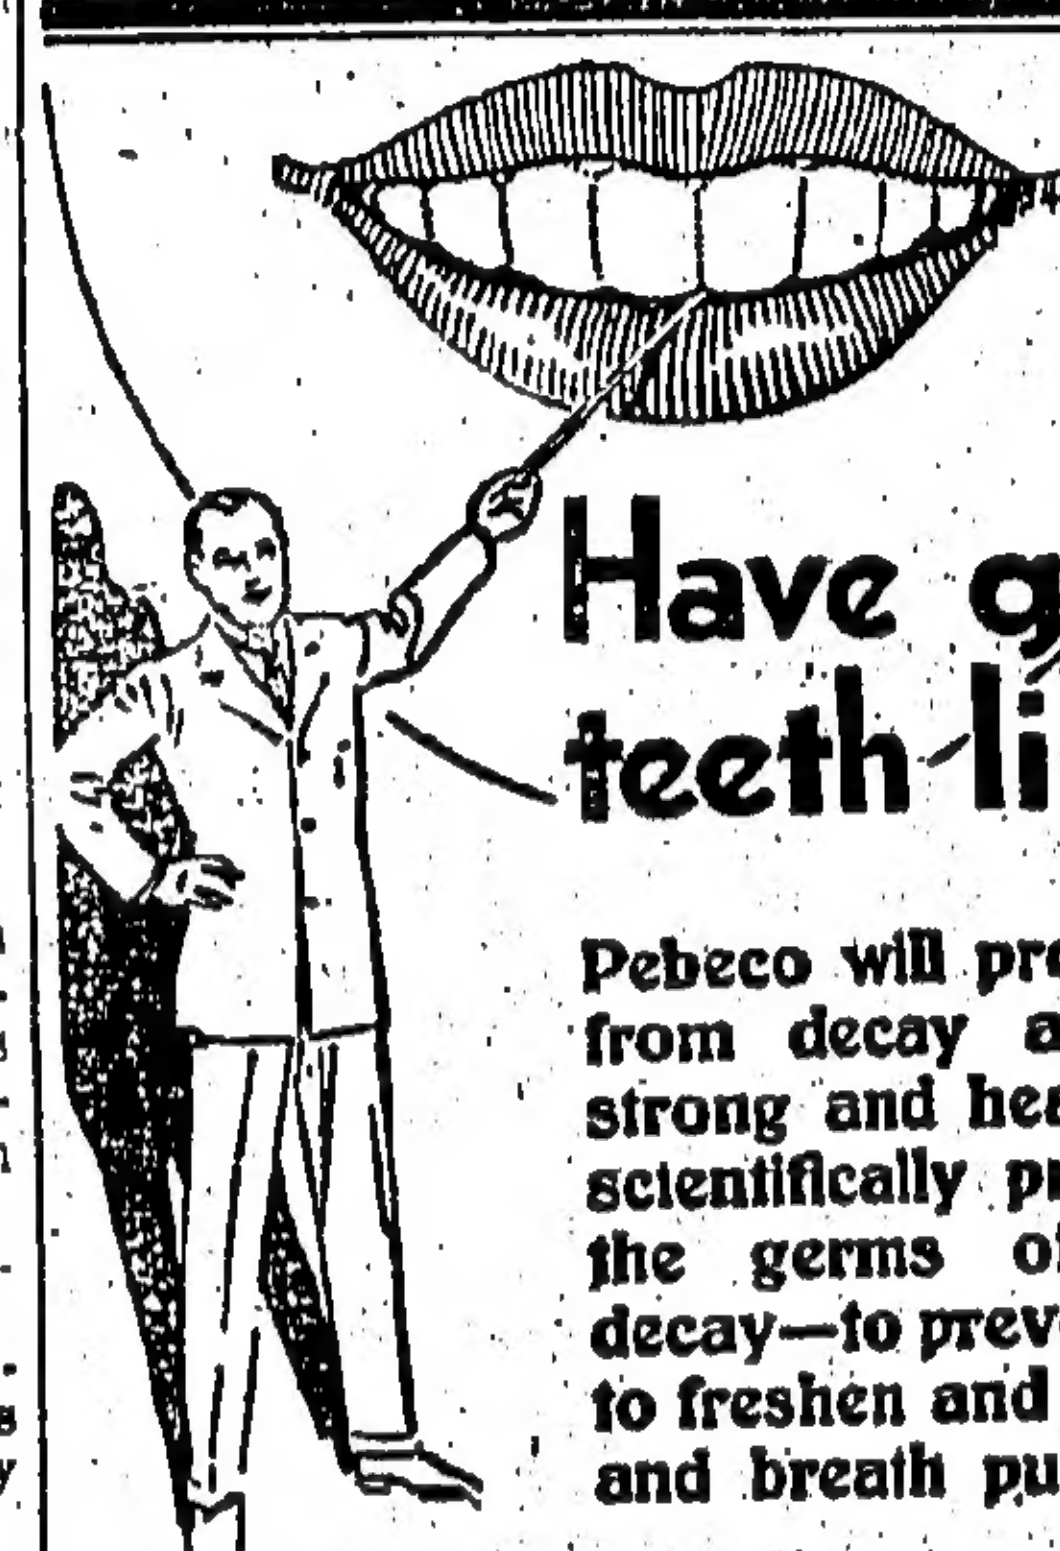

Given fine weather, Hongkong will fire on Sunday next at Stonecutters Island, in the Far East Interport Rifle match. Results obtained in the recent trials have given rise to a definite feeling of optimism, although a formidable task had been set the selected team by Shanghai who put

F.A. CUP MAY BEGIN TO UPSET LEAGUE FORM

DISTURBING ELEMENT THREAT TO THIRD DIVISION CLUBS

SATURDAY'S LEAGUE PROSPECTS

SPURS VISIT LEEDS AND FACE BIG PROPOSITION

(By "The Pilgrim")

With the draw for the first round proper of the F.A. Cup now filling the minds of those Third Division clubs who hope to go far enough to reap a rich financial harvest, we shall probably find a disturbing element in the game which will influence form to some extent.

At the moment however, the important rounds are too far ahead to be more than a pleasant reminder of the joys to come and there is sufficient in this week-end's fixture list to occupy the mind of the punter.

If my forecast is correct Arsenal will draw a point ahead of Huddersfield but will come no nearer the leaders who entertain the rapidly declining Stoke.

Chelsea Will See the Sights

Chelsea have nothing to look forward to, apart from the sights, when they visit West Bromwich Albion, and I fancy that the other two bottom teams, Newcastle and Sheffield United will not improve though playing on their own grounds.

I consider Arsenal and Birmingham to be certain in this League.

In the Second Division I am optimistic of the chances of Bolton, Grimsby, West Ham, and Bradford, who are playing away though if I feel any doubt at all, it is that Bradford City may spring a surprise.

I cannot see a single visiting club in the Southern Section who have prospects of doing anything better than a draw.

There are, however, few attractive engagements from the punter's point of view, only the Norwich-Charlton match being at all certain.

Port Vale and Hull are home clubs who should have no difficulty in gaining full points.

Paradoxical Rotherham

I expect Chesterfield to make amends at York for their last week's thrashing at the hands of Walsall and Gateshead will probably nip in the bud the hopes of another Rotherham success, especially, (though paradoxically) as the latter are playing at home.

Rangers will be tested when they travel to St. Johnstone in the Scottish First Division and Kilmarnock will have to go all out to get a brace from Queen's Park.

Whatever the results of the other matches, Motherwell, with a nine points lead of the third placed club, have nothing to fear in their home game with Airdrie.

10 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL

DEAN'S MOVES WHICH BRING GOALS

WILLING TO CO-OPERATE WITH HIS COLLEAGUES

(By "Saracen")

There are two types of centre forward in modern football, one whose aim seems to consist simply in trying to dash between the opposing backs with the hope of being able to get in a shot and another who is always eager for the same chance, but has more resource and combines with the other members of the front line.

Dixie Dean of Everton is a splendid example of the all-round player, and successful as he is as a marksmen he also contributes with fine effect to the scoring feats of the other forwards, having the ability to bring all his colleagues into the game.

When the ball is sent down the middle to the centre forward he is usually completely covered and with his back to the goal he is attacking he has not much chance to go on with it. It is under these conditions that the Everton man is perhaps at his best. He has two well known ways of dealing with a straight through pass and the one he adopts depends on the trajectory of the ball when it reaches him.

CLEVER TACTIC

If the ball arrives head high he realizes that it is not much good to try and head it goalwards. To do that is simply to present it to the backs waiting behind him. Instead he tries to head it back to one of his inside colleagues who are coming up and in this way he creates the chance for a direct shot.

Many of the goals of Dunn and Johnson are obtained in this way, their efforts being delivered under the cover of Dean, as it were, and quickly, to surprise the goalkeeper.

If the ball comes low enough to allow Dean to take it with either foot when he is still covered by the opposing centre-half his endeavour is to glide it out to the wing where again the outside forward is coming up in anticipation of the pass. Usually these passes are to the left and they permit Dean to collect the ball in his stride and race past the back on the inside, a path which takes him into a shooting position.

Both these moves bring excellent results as the record of Everton indicates, but it follows, of course, that they can only be successful if they are understood and anticipated. This is not difficult inasmuch as what Dean will do is largely determined by the type of pass he receives.

Clubhouse Chatter By "Pilgrim"

Syd Puddefoot Now Coaching In Turkey

WITH so many old players seeking jobs it comes as welcome news that the F.A. have decided to set up a Committee to consider the question of a coaching scheme for boys.

ONE is badly needed, for in addition to the good it would do the game, it would provide a suitable opening for players at the end of their careers.

Word has arrived from Syd Puddefoot, the international forward, who is coaching the senior club in Turkey.

HIS team have won the first two matches under his control, one of them in Bulgaria. Puddefoot's English methods at first made the players feel stiff and sore, but now they are perfectly fit and making rapid progress. Puddefoot is perfectly happy and content with his new position.

TALKING of brothers — there were two brothers in Ireland's half-back line in match against England in Belfast.

MITCHELL (Chelms), had to cry off owing to ankle trouble and his place at left-half was taken by S. Jones (Ditilly), younger brother of the pivot, J. Jones (Linsfield).

JOSEPH, Lindsay the former Dumbarton and Scottish International footballer, who died recently, had a wonderful record.

HE was centre-forward for Dumbarton when they won the Scottish Cup in the season of 1882-83, and he played eight times for Scotland against England in 1881, 1884, 1885 and 1886, and against Wales in 1880, 1881, 1884 and 1885.

NEWPORT County lost £1,128 on last season.

MILLWALL are still weak in attack. Alexander, from Bradford City, in his first match for the London team was not very effective.

methods. No frills, just hard work. Nolan has a fine understanding with his wing men.

UNTIL Luton have better markings they will never get the reward of their attractive combination forward.

FOR the first time since he joined Mansfield in 1931 Harry Johnson was dropped from the team to meet Rochdale.

HIS place at centre-forward was taken by McIlven, son of Jimmy McIlven, the old Derby County international, whom Barnsley are anxious to secure.

E. J. Drake, the Southampton F.C. centre-forward, is definitely staying with the club which introduced him to professional football.

Mr. George Kay, manager of Southampton F.C., emphasised this fact in a statement when he said: "I have had more than a dozen offers for Drake from first-class clubs and rejected them all."

"YOU may take it from me that whatever offer I may have will be turned down. We owe something to our supporters. Our position is different from that of last season, when we were compelled to part with—keeping—and Arnold."

Drake To Remain With Southampton After All

Charlton Athletic have secured the transfer from Reading of M. Forster, a full-back. Forster joined Reading from Tottenham Hotspur a few seasons ago.

PLYMOUTH Argyle, who signed on Sam Kirkwood, a right full-back, from Portadown, the Irish League Club have a list of players on the books higher than ever before in their history.

ALEXANDER, Bradford City's clever right-wing forward, has been transferred to Millwall. Mr. McCracken, the Millwall manager, was manager of Hull City at the time Alexander played for that club. He has made frequent efforts to secure the services of Alexander, for whom a substantial fee has been paid.

NOTED INDIAN DEAD

SIR MANCHERJEE
BHOWNAGREE

SECOND INDIAN MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

London, Nov. 14.
Sir Mancherjee Bhownagree, who was the second Indian to become a member of the House of Commons, where he represented Bethnal Green as a Conservative for many years, died to-day aged 82.
Sir Mancherjee Merwanjee Bhownagree was the son of a Parsee merchant of Bombay. In his early days a journalist, he succeeded his father in the Bombay agency of the Kathiawar state of Bhavnagar at the age of 22. In 1885 he was called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn and in 1890 the Maharaja appointed him judicial councillor in which capacity he carried out a number of important reforms in the state. In 1891 he went to England and became leader of the Parsees in Europe. In memory of his sister he bore the cost of the eastern colonnade of the Imperial Institute in South Kensington. In 1895 he was returned for N. E. Bethnal Green as a Unionist—the only Indian except Naoji to be elected to the House of Commons.

TRANSVAAL DISCLOSURES.

In 1897 he was knighted (K.C.I.E.). He was re-elected in 1900 and sat in Parliament altogether for 10 years, during which period he made many telling speeches on Indian questions and acted as champion of the Indians in South Africa and other British Dominions. His exposition of the case of the Indians in the Transvaal was embodied in a blue book in 1904 and was sent to Lord Milner by Alfred Lytton, the Colonial Secretary, with the remark that it would be difficult to answer the charges made. The outcome was that some important proposals of the former were rejected.
Bhownagree was one of the first Indians to urge the necessity for technical and vocational training for Indians, holding that they were too apt to confine themselves to a literary education. During the war he replied to German propaganda against British rule by writing a pamphlet "The Verdict of India." He also wrote a history of the East India Company—British Wireless and Special.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Cleaning Up" the British Lion comedy which is being shown at the King's Theatre on Friday, is a film which is certain to cure even the most persistent fit of the "blues". The story deals with the adventures of a son of a noble family, who decides to work for his living instead of marrying a wealthy heiress. He gets a job as a vacuum cleaner salesman, and his many misadventures end up by him accidentally getting on the stage during an intermission, and being seen busily demonstrating his vacuum cleaner when the curtain goes up. George Goe, the famous stage star, plays the part of Tony Pumpford, the son of Lord Pumpford,
Betty Astor, Davy Burnaby, of Co-Optimist fame, and Barbara Gott are also in the cast of "Cleaning Up".
Nobody should miss this British laughster riot, which promises to be the funniest film seen here for many years. It is a topping piece of entertainment.

"Hold Your Man"
Hollywood was combed for a three-year-old boy with Clark Gable's smile and Jean Harlow's hair to play the part of their son in "Hold Your Man," their new co-starring vehicle which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre from Sunday. In the story, an original by Anita Loos, there is a scene in which the little child appears. The dramatic action demands that he be the characters portrayed by Miss Harlow and Gable.
Director Sam Wood, trying to figure the best way to elicit such an identification, decided it was necessary to use a child who had the outstanding characteristics of the co-stars. The casting office sent out a call which was responded to by more than a half hundred anxious mothers, each insisting their child was a dead-ringer for Miss Harlow and Gable. Little Bobby Burns finally won the part with his smile and hair, much to the chagrin of the brigade of disappointed mothers who thronged the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offices with their offspring candidates. Included in the cast of "Hold Your Man" are Stuart
Erwin, Dorothy Burgess, Muriel
Kirkland, Gerry Owen, Barbara
Barondess, Paul Hurst, Elizabeth
Baker, Theodos Harris, Blanche Friedrich and George Reed.

"The Shadow"
The product of the Twickenham Studios has always been distinguished by excellent casting, and "The Shadow" will certainly maintain this Company's well established reputation.
It is being presented at the King's Theatre to-day. At the head of the cast are two of Britain's most popular film stars, Henry Kendall and Elizabeth Allan. Kendall will be seen in a part ideally suited to his great gift for the interpretation of "silly non" comedy, and he also has a chance to show his talent as a dramatic actor.
The name of Elizabeth Allan is now a household word. She has now left to fulfil a big film contract in Hollywood, and "The Shadow" is made more interesting by the fact that it will be one of the last chances to see her in a British film.

Queen's Attraction
Eight hundred and twenty hours of flying were necessary to film air battle scenes for "The Eagle and The Hawk," story of two wartime aviators who become heroes under the stimulus of their hatred for each other, which has its final showing today at the Queen's. Frederic March, Gary Grant, Jack Oakie, who play the leading male roles in the film, between them rolled up about one-fifth of this total—enough to give each of them a fair start toward a flying licence. The remainder of the hours added to the already long records of a dozen members of Hollywood's "Bulldog Squadron," organization of stunt pilots. The latter piloted the planes through crazy aerial manoeuvres required by the script.

"Night After Night"
Equipped with an amusing ultramodern story and a cast that would do honour to any film or stage play,
"Night After Night," the screen version of Lou Bromfield's story "Single Night," will be shown from tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. The film is an unusually palatable concoction of sophistication and naïveté.
Each one of the characters follows that description. Joe Anton, the role played by George Raft, for example, is a pugilist, present-day spangely proprietor, Joe has all the background and habits of the regular tough, know-it-all insolent type that has been pictured so often in the films. But notice Joe with Miss Jellyman, the school teacher who comes every day to teach him how to talk like a gentleman. He is no more than a naïve schoolboy, standing in humble awe of the superior knowledge and culture of this dewy, middle-aged woman, who has never had any fun before is the Lady, portrayed by Constance Cummings, perfectly poised lonely, disillusioned, the perfect representative of that stratum of society which bases its conduct on appearances rather than fundamentals.

But what happens to The Lady when in spite of herself, she falls—quite fundamentally—for Joe? Where's her sophistication then? There is also Iris (Wynne Gibson), the hard-boiled chorus girl who had originally taken on Joe for a good thing. Iris can take care of herself—she knows her way around! But how about the Iris who fights to hold her man, palsies in her losing battle? Maude probably has more life-knowledge than all the rest of them—Maude whose role is in the extremely competent hands of Mae West. Maude has lived longer than the rest of them. She's learned that most of the things that excite the others so much aren't really worth bothering about.
So Maude is good-natured, tolerant and—honest. She alone has the patience to see that the school teacher, who, happily, is Allison Skipworth, gets the most out of her first night in a "speakeasy." These are the characters about whom centres the story of
"Night After Night."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem
The contract for the following hand is four spades by North. East cashes two rounds of clubs and leads a third club which you might ruff. But what is the correct play?

Solution in next issue. 23

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

Unfortunately, too many people allow honours to influence their bidding. I presume that the majority of my readers, if they picked up a hand containing 150 aces, immediately would open the bidding with at least one no trump. But this is not always correct. Take, for example, to-day's hand. South has no advantage in opening the contracting with one no trump. He cannot possibly gain a trick by the opening lead. Therefore, if he is to receive any benefit from the timing factor, his partner must play the hand at no trump.

The Bidding
South West North East
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
2 diamond Pass 2 N.T. Pass
3 N.T. Pass Pass
While I do not favour the bidding of a weak four-card suit, or of three-card suits, both rules must be broken in this hand. You do not want to play the hand at no trump in the South. If it is to be played at no trump, South wants his partner, North, to be the declarer.

Therefore, the bidding should be opened with a suit, hoping that partner's response will be no trump. When North responds with a spade that does not help at all.

Now try to fill his weak spot for no trump. You hold the ace and king of diamonds and undoubtedly he was unable to bid no trump, due to his weakness in diamonds. Therefore, you bid two diamonds. This is a constructive bid and there never is much danger of partner passing.

Now your partner, with the queen of clubs and the queen of must have now learned, completely free to order her own affairs.

Membership of the Commonwealth confers great advantages which by her own action the Irish Free State is tending to lose—the privileges of common citizenship, economic advantages in trading with the rest of the Empire, opportunity of powerful influence in international affairs in concert with the other members of the Commonwealth in the cause of world peace.

ALL GO TOGETHER.

"These privileges carry with them responsibilities, respect for the Crown, loyal observance of engagements, a spirit of friendship and co-operation with the other members of the British Commonwealth."

"It is our desire to see the Irish Free State taking her full share as a member of Commonwealth, not grudgingly, but of her own free will, accepting her responsibilities, and enjoying privileges. If she renounces the one, she cannot hope to enjoy the other."

BRITISH POLICY.

Asked if he proposed to take any steps in consultation with the Dominions to emphasise the policy he had indicated, Mr. Thomas said the dispute affected Great Britain and the Irish Free State alone and they did not intend to drag the Dominions into it.—British Wireless.

When the s.s. Norvikken arrived here from Canton yesterday afternoon her Chief Officer, Mr. Oskar Dorentzen, was rushed to Kennedy Town Hospital suffering from a fever, from small-pox. We were informed by the hospital authorities this morning that the patient is being kept under observation. The Norvikken went to the quarantine anchorage at Stonecutters this morning.

SIR DAVID MURRAY

OF 84

FAMOUS ARTIST

London, Nov. 14.
The death occurred to-day of Sir David Murray, aged 84, Royal Academician, and well-known landscape painter.

Sir David spent 11 years in business before taking up painting as a profession. While still engaged in commercial pursuits he had acquired considerable skill as an artist and, when he devoted all his time to art he came rapidly to the front. He received his early training at the Glasgow Art School under Robert Greenlees. His work is marked by a fine sense of colour and genuine, if not deep, appreciation of the more brilliant aspects of Nature.

Up to 1880 he painted mostly in Scotland, but in that year he spent a long season in Picardy and afterwards worked chiefly in the South of England. About 1890 he adopted a new style, devoting more attention to line and light and shade with the result that the glow of his colour was dimmed. But his new method was alien to the natural bent of his mind and his work improved again when he returned to his earlier style with its rich colouring.

OVER-PRETINESS.

His love for delicate detail such as foliage and flowers in the foreground, which he drew beautifully, was sometimes allowed to disturb the breadth and unity of his design. There was also a tendency to the over-pretentiousness so characteristic of English landscape painting.

Murray was elected A.R.S.A. in 1880, A.R.A. in 1891 and R.A. in 1905. Knighted in 1918, he became president of the Royal Institute of Painters in Watercolours in 1917 and of the Royal Scottish Academy in 1921.

LOCAL ESTATES

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION GRANTED

Local estate valued at $70,400 was left by Enrique Brías de Coya, of 1027 Herran Street, Manila, who died on February 3. Letters of administration with the will annexed to the estate have been granted to Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, attorney, for the use and benefit of Enrique Pedro Brías Roxas.

Chin Moy-she (or shee) alias Chin Wong-she (or shee), alias Wong Thew Lan (or Lan) Chin, married woman, of 32, Oxford Street, Boston, died on July 23, 1932, leaving local estate valued at $9,000. Chin (or Chon) Foo (or Fu) teung (or caung), attorney, has been granted letters of administration for the use and benefit of Chin Wah, alias Chin Ying-doon, husband.

In 1919. Two of his pictures "My Love is gone a-sailing" and "In the Country of Constable" were bought for the Tate Gallery. "Young Wheat" is one of his most notable works. "Hymn-making in the Scottish Fens," "Springtime Tillitulem," "Loch Linnhe," "The Ferry Rock, Corrie," "Gathering for the 'Toss-out, Tarbert,'" "Sonnet Sands and Shallows" are full of beauty. Sometimes audacious in colour and atmospheric effect, they give a striking impression of those brightly beautiful aspects of Scotland in which the colour like that of a wet pebble, is brought out by the rain.

Murray also did many lovely water colours. Others of his pictures are "Willows," "The Meadow Mirror," "In Summer Time," "A view of Windsor," "River Road," "Marigolds," "Gorse," "Hampshire," "Long After," and "Sweden." He painted many landscapes in Picardy, the Italian Lakes, Venice, the Trossachs, the Island of Lewis and sea-pieces, from the Dorset coast.—British Wireless and Special.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XXVI

"A Meeting of The Shadows."

In spite of their resolve, it is doubtful whether Napoleon and Guy could have retained their neutral attitude had not the events of the next few seconds occurred with such rapidity. As the door opened, the waiting man drew back his arm, and an instant later it shot forward murderously; but the intended victim was saved by a subconscious alertness which had been developed during the past few days—the alertness of a man who, standing on the edge of a great precipice, is constantly alive to the fact that somebody may come along and shove him over. There was a sharp growl as the emerging figure ducked. The assailant, overbalancing as his body shot forward and his swinging arm met nothing but air, stumbled desperately, and found himself embraced by two great arms.

"Let go, you devil!" he gasped. "Likely!" barked the owner of the great arms; and while he held on grimly, he called over his shoulder, "Steady, Joe—put him down. I want you out here."

"Devil, devil!" sobbed the fellow on whom the tables had been turned.

"You ain't a bad hand at being a devil yourself, Mirronneau," retorted his captor. "How the—gentleman in question did you get here?"

"What's the trouble Smith?" came Joe's voice from the interior; and then Joe's form appeared—at great, hulking form, which case might have rendered feebly. But Joe had never enjoyed much ease; which possibly explained why he was now flaking so much to obtain it. "Hell!" he muttered. "It's that foreign insect!"

"How did you get away from the boat, Mirronneau?" demanded Smith. Mirronneau glared helplessly into the rough coat against which he was being ruthlessly pressed. "Come along—answer me! How did you get away?"

"Ah, I am not to get away, no!" spluttered Mirronneau. "I am to stay here till I rot. I belong to you, is not that so? You can do what you like with me, is not that so? Keep me days and days and days, and make me to sleep—"

"Oh, shut all that!" exclaimed Smith, angrily. "Shall I do a little more to you? Break your neck, eh?"

"Go slow, skipper," interposed

Joe, in a slow voice. "We've got to hear what he's got to tell us before we begin breaking necks."

"That's right," nodded Smith, and again addressed Mirronneau. "Now, look here, Froggy. You're a fool, as you've always been. You've never got this right, from the start, and if you had you'd have saved a mint of trouble for the lot of us—"

"Animal! Cheat! Mon Dieu—" "Quiet, I say! Listen—I'm giving you your last chance, though you don't deserve it. You call me a cheat, hey? Well—what do you call yourself? You're the worst kind of cheat, because you're a fool into the bargain, and fools are a damned nuisance in this game. Why, of course, I'm interested in your little game! Who wouldn't be? And—even now—if you'll be sensible and share and share alike, it may not be too late."

"That's true," nodded Joe. "You can trust us, Frenchy."

"Oh, I trust you!" cried Mirronneau, wildly. "I trust you very fine! I trust you to keep me on ze boat, and to blow me up with zat dead man. Oo is 'ee? Nycroft, you call 'im! I 'ear you. And to bring 'im to me, when I lie asleep with your dam' stuff, and to make me go off my mind when I wake up!"

"Oh, you saw him when you woke up, then, eh?" enquired Smith, with a glance at Joe.

"Not ze first time, no. My mind—it is black. If I am bad, it is not so bad like you. I wake with ze black mind—"

"You weren't intended to wake at all, sonny," murmured Smith. "I know zat!" spat out the Frenchman, savagely. "You keep me just enough awake to begin—these first days—but affairs—when it is no good, and I do not do what you say—I must go to sleep for long time. Ah, but I am not a fool! I go to sleep quick on purpose, to make you stop and to give me no more of your stuff. And, when I wake up—" He paused abruptly.

"Well—when you woke up, Froggy?" repeated Smith, watching him.

The Frenchman hesitated. He looked sullen.

"You know," he said. "I see zat dead man by my side."

Again, Joe and Smith exchanged glances.

"You said you didn't see him the first time," Joe remarked. "What did you do before you saw him—the second time, whenever that was?" Mirronneau did not reply. "Come along—what did you do? Did you leave the room? Still Mirronneau was silent. "Did you—"

All at once, Mirronneau found his voice. He broke into a shrill laugh.

"I will tell you," he cried. "I see zat dead man. Mon Dieu! I run up to ze deck, and—"

But again he hesitated, while Napoleon gently nudged Guy. Napoleon knew what the Frenchman had seen that time.

"To blazes with you!" exclaimed Smith, angrily. "What do you keep on stopping for? What happened on deck? Tell me quick, or you'll get your neck twisted. What happened—and how did you get away?"

Mirronneau grew calm, and shrugged his shoulders.

"Ver' good. I tell you. I go on deck and I see two men."

"God!" muttered Smith. And then snapped out suddenly, "You're lying!"

"Ver' good. I lie," agreed Mirronneau, and shut his mouth.

"You're a fool, Smith," said Joe, frowning. "We're got to hear about this. Lies or no lies. Go on, you," he added, to the Frenchman.

"No, I lie."

"We don't think you're lying."

"No, I lie. What good to 'ear me? Twist my neck."

Napoleon again nudged Guy, and Guy nudged him back. It was a wordless appreciation of the Frenchman for having at last scored a point. Whatever the Frenchman's record, and it appeared to be a black one, the two watchers considered him comparatively spotless beside Joe and Captain Smith.

"Suppose I do twist your neck, you say?" threatened the captain.

"Zen no more words come from it, and you 'ear no more lies," answered Mirronneau, blandly. But the poor fellow could not keep it up, for a sudden pressure loosened his tongue again. "Ver' good—I tell you," he said, quickly. "I see two men."

"Who were they?"

"Ow do I know? I do not know zem. And it is dark. At first, I sink zat zat ghost. My mind is still black—black with zat stuff you give me, and zat dead man shock. I fly. Zey try to catch me, but I am too quick. Zey go below—"

"The devil they did!" muttered Smith.

"Zat devil zat did. And zat devil I took zat boat, and zat devil I come here. And zat devil I try to kill you, as you try to kill me. And zat devil I got 'old of your nose, and twist it—so!"

A cry of anger came from the captain, and for an instant his grip on the Frenchman relaxed. It was the instant the Frenchman wanted, and had planned for. Like a flash of lightning, or perhaps like the sea which the captain had called him, he darted away.

"Catch him!" shouted Smith. Joe blundered forward, but was too late. Mirronneau had vanished utterly.

"No—let him go," exclaimed Smith, as Joe was about to follow. "We've got to do some quick thinking. Spose his yarn was true?"

"It must have been," replied Joe. "Why?"

"There was no reason to invent it. And it explains how he got away."

"Ah, that's right enough," agreed Smith. "All the same, Joe, I don't agree there was no reason for him to invent it. He'd want to keep us from going back to that boat, wouldn't he? Damn him! Why didn't he stay asleep, as he was intended?"

"Are you still thinking of going back there, Smith?" asked Joe, doubtfully. "If his story was true—those two men will still be on the blasted place."

"Well—we're two men, ain't we?" responded Smith.

A short silence fell. Then the captain barked out, "I'm game, if you are."

"We'd better stick together, whatever we do," growled the other. "You're getting sensible, Joe, in your old age! We're done! We don't stick together. With Mirronneau loose again, it's a poor chance we've got anyway. But there's one thing you've overlooked. We need money. And didn't something strike you about Mirronneau—didn't he give you the idea that—well, that he'd made a bit of progress on that boat? I'd damn well like to know what he did when he crawled out that first time, before he returned and saw Nycroft. He wouldn't tell us."

"You mean, he might have—?"

"He certainly might have. And, if that's so, we may just be in time to nip in and finish the job. It's a thin chance, but it is a chance, and the only one. If you and I are going to get clear, Joe, we'll need

CHARGE OF MURDER.

DEFENDANT COMMITTED TO NEXT SESSIONS

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon, Chu Lam, charged with murdering a Chinese woman named Fung Man, aged 66, at the Yau-mat typhoon shelter on the morning of September 11, was committed for trial at the next Sessions.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, prosecuted for the Crown.

Three witnesses were called by the defendant, the first, Wong Yu, being cautioned by Mr. Wynne-Jones who said:

"Before you start, I want to caution you and I want to tell you that the defendant is charged with murdering Fung Man on her sampan in the Yau-mat typhoon shelter on the morning of September 11. Evidence has been brought by the prosecution against him and he has made a statement to me and has asked for you as a witness. Now, you are bound to tell me all that you know about it, except that you need not answer any question which might incriminate you."

The witness declared that he knew nothing about the murder. He did not remember ever having seen the defendant while he was working at General Wong's orchard in the New Territories.

Two other witnesses for the defendant, Chu Woo and Li Chau, after being similarly cautioned, also denied knowledge of the murder, but admitted to having seen defendant working in the orchard.

Wong Wun, younger brother of General Gaston Wong, gave evidence that he acted on behalf of his brother in managing an orchard, which is being laid in the neighbourhood of Ngau Tam Mei, near Lok Ma Chau. He remembered employing the defendant, engaging him to work from September 9 until September 17. Defendant had done piece work, therefore being able to take his own time over his work.

some stuff—not only for ourselves, but maybe to hand out."

"Right you are," acquiesced Joe, half-heartedly. "Anyway, there's no need to board the wreck if we don't like the look of her. I say, Smith," he added, suddenly. "What about this other chap?"

"Afraid we'll have to let him stay," grunted the captain. "He won't wake for a bit anyhow, and we can't be hampered with him now. Come along."

Then the voices ceased, and heavy footsteps were heard trudging off. Napoleon and Guy did not speak till the footsteps had died away. Then Napoleon turned to his companion.

"Give 'em a few moments to get clear," he whispered. "Then we'll invade the cottage."

"Yes, but ought we to let 'em get clear?" Guy whispered back.

"My darling, we're not paid policemen," retorted Napoleon. "I regard ourselves as voluntary workers, with a certain sense of selection which may be humoured. Didn't you see them? I'm not sure that even Dempsey wouldn't think twice. Besides," he added, "the police always like to take all the credit. They shall have it."

"I suppose those two men Mirronneau saw on the boat were you and Sefton."

"Rather!" nodded Napoleon. "Imagine me frightening anybody! But they're likely to find more than two men this time, for Sefton and the inspector have gone there with a crowd of about ninety-nine."

"Then they won't board the wreck?"

"They mightn't."

"And they may come back?"

"They might. Hooray! But—"

Guy held up his hand. A fresh sound now fell upon their ears.

The soft chug-chug of a motor-boat. The engine appeared to have been muffled, and in the rising wind it sounded only faintly.

The chug-chug grew more distant, and faded into the darkness. Napoleon rose from his cramped position, and beckoning Guy to follow him, walked round to the front door.

"Damn!" he muttered. "Locked!"

London, Nov. 14.

The second report of the Select Committee on Road Traffic Compensation for accidents and emergency treatment bills, deals with provision for payment of doctors and hospitals for services in attending and treating persons injured in motor accidents.

The Committee proposes that and hospitals should be paid 12/6d for attending and treating each person so injured. They have decided that the best way to collect the money is to make liabilities on third party risks which are compulsorily insured. The additional cost of insurance, it is stated, would be negligible.—British Wireless.

FALSE MARKS.

JAPANESE GOODS MARKED "MADE IN MANCHESTER."

Cairo, Nov. 14.

Egyptian Customs officers are reported to have seized a quantity of Japanese cotton goods stamped "Made in Manchester."—Reuter.

"What about the window?" suggested Guy.

"God bless the little window," said Napoleon.

They returned to the window of the room in which the two men had first been conversing. It took them only a few seconds to open it wide. Quickly, they clambered in.

There was no light, and Guy struck a match. There was no lamp. It had evidently been taken from the room. They crossed the floor, and reached the passage, and the match flickered out as they did so.

"I say—weren't we rather fools not to look for that hatchet?" murmured Guy suddenly, preparing to strike another match.

From somewhere across the dark hall came a voice: "And so devil I will get you next time, if you come back!"

STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

— neither strong enough, nor safe enough, nor quiet enough for the body of a quality car like

CHEVROLET

Why is it that every 12-cylinder and 16-cylinder car has bodies of steel reinforced by hardwood? Why is it that every make of car selling for over $4000 uses bodies of exactly the same type? Why? For the same reason that Chevrolet uses it exclusively. Because every test and every experiment has definitely proved: STEEL ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH!

The trouble with steel alone is that it stands just so much shock and punishment! Steel alone is also inclined to rumble and rattle. BUT—when you put the two together—a heavy, staunch, steel body over tough, solid hardwood—then the hardwood reinforces the steel—and vice versa! And the result: the strongest, safest type of body, such as Fisher builds for Chevrolet.

WHO'S TO BLAME?

In a limited sense, there is some ground for the view, expressed by Labour speakers in the House of Commons that the breakdown of the Disarmament Conference, and the serious situation which has consequently arisen, originated in the failure of the League of Nations to take action against Japan when the full implications of her policy in Manchuria were made obvious. But there is not the least justification for the criticism that Britain is specifically to blame. The blame has to be shared by the Powers collectively. To charge the League of Nations, as such, is absurd. The League, after all, is not a super-State, or a separate political entity. It is merely a conglomerate of Powers. If, therefore, as in the case under notice, the Powers fail to reach agreement on action to be taken against a member which is considered to have acted in defiance of League principles, the issues are only obscured by imputing failure to the League itself. It is a debatable point whether, had action been taken in the initial stages of the Sino-Japanese dispute, Japan would have changed her tactics. A point not to be lost sight of is that, even despite inaction, Japan decided to withdraw from the League, resenting the criticisms contained in the Lytton Report. To say that Britain has inferentially encouraged Japan to defy the world is to fail to get down to root causes. These causes will more likely be found in Japan's avowed policy in the East, elaborated over a long period of years and made plain at what she considered to be the appropriate moment, when the Powers were engrossed and preoccupied with their own problems. American re-armament and the strengthening of defences in Australia and New Zealand are therefore more rightly attributable to Japan's policies than to anything else. The failure of Britain, in common with other Powers, to put pressure on Japan, and the inclination to accept Japanese official assurances at their face value, may have been a factor in encouraging the Japanese militarists to go ahead with their plans, but it cannot be regarded as the dominant cause of the present situation. Admittedly, the moral effect of allowing Japanese aggression to go unchallenged has been disastrous, but Britain cannot justifiably be indicted as being alone to blame in this regard.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A NEW M.P.

The election of Mr. Kenneth Lindsay as M. P. for Kilmarnock is highly interesting as indicating the new trend of thought permeating the National Government. Twelve months ago, Mr. Lindsay would not have been considered eligible as a National candidate. Yet he fought Kilmarnock with the blessing of the Prime Minister, and goes into Parliament to join the Minister of Agriculture, the Minister of Transport and other leaders of the new school in striving for measures for social betterment. Mr. Lindsay has been the driving force behind the group calling themselves the P.E.P. and issuing a broadsheet called Planning, advocating Political and Economic Planning. He was the founder of the Oxford Union Labour Club and the first Socialist President of the Oxford Union. Small wonder that the orthodox Conservatives are wondering what place he can find among them, though they agree that he might have added brains and distinction to the Labour opposition. The fact that he sat as a National candidate reflects not a change in his own outlook, but in the guiding principles of the Government.

THE AMERICAN PICTURE

The American scene changes so rapidly that the conviction is growing that observers are not alone in their inability to foresee what next will follow. The President does not seem to know his own mind for two minutes at a time. To-day inflation seems the only cure for the monetary crisis. Then it suddenly appears that inflation will not be permitted at any price. An ambitious gold policy is embarked upon with the idea of depressing the dollar and the success of the manoeuvre is greeted with alarm, apparently because it succeeded beyond expectations. U. S. Government securities fall alarmingly in consequence and a flight from the dollar develops. And one section of Washington opinion talks of the introduction of inflation as the only way to save the situation. Just as though it could have any other effect than completing the picture of monetary chaos. The trouble seems to be that no-one is quite sure exactly what is wanted. And the danger seems to be that the rush to experiment will undermine every stable structure and sweep every theory away.

THE INTERPORT

The Colony's cricketers regained their laurels at the expense of Shanghai, with plenty of margin to spare, but the victory was not all satisfaction. Most of the real cricket came from the visitors. They were human enough to collapse in the first innings, suffering under the moral effect of Beck's first ball, but they showed how cricket should be played when given a second lease of the wicket. Hongkong permitted a Test Match atmosphere to be injected, scraping for their runs even when a winning position had been established. The one really bright spell of the match came when Donald Leach and his men decided to have none of it.

SPAIN'S ELECTIONS

The formation of a new Spanish Government with Senor Barrios as Premier can hardly be regarded as bringing to an end the political crisis which opened with the resignation of Manuel Adana. Indeed, events of the last few weeks made it abundantly clear that a new consultation of the people had become necessary and that the real issue was not who should govern but who should preside over the coming elections. Spain is not alone in attaching importance to the personality of its Prime Minister in an electoral period. Rightly or wrongly, it is considered that on the character of the ministry in power may depend the result of the appeal to the ballot box. Alejandro Lerroux, who formed a short-lived Cabinet, had made clear his intention of dissolving the Cortes. In his view, the Cortes had fulfilled its functions when it provided the country with a Constitution. Thereafter it possessed no mandate from the people. It had been given a specific task, and afterward its continuance was purely arbitrary. Nor can it be doubted that some of the Government which characterised the Azana Cabinet savoured of the dictatorship from which Spain believed it had freed itself. Substantially, the attitude of Senor Lerroux was widely approved, as was shown by the results of municipal and tribal elections. Parliament had become divorced from the people.

WHY I AM LEAVING THE CHURCH

By The Rev. RAYMOND YOUNG

I AM 32. For more than six years I have laboured in the ministry of the Free Churches. There has never been a complaint as to the quality of my preaching or my devotion to my ministry.

My character has never been impugned. I have laboured as hard and as zealously as I know.

Yet at 32, with what I believe to be years of actively ahead of me, I have become a spiritual wall. I have resigned my pastorate, and go out into the wilderness, so to speak.

What I regard as sheer bigotry and petty-mindedness have overcome my endeavours.

I leave as a protest. Our fathers, the sturdy Independents, established the Free Churches on their own devout protest against bigotry and obscurantism.

But the spirit of protest has gone from them in many cases.

The Churches have lost their guts. They are dominated by women. If the minister be a man, if he has the instincts and the tolerance of a vital man, he must conceal them.

His utterances in the pulpit, his every-day talk, in my opinion, must be regulated by the grossness of his congregation.

Once he is in the ministry, and the longer he remains, the shackles of prejudice and malice grow heavier.

A man loses any value he may have in the labour market. The bread and butter of his wife and family depend upon his subservience.

A man becomes sorely tempted in such circumstances to abandon his own independence.

But my own protest has become inevitable.

Events of the last few months have pushed the question of total abstinence and temperance into the forefront of my dispute.

I drink very little. But I believe that wine is one of God's good gifts to man. I believe also that a man may find consolation and help in an occasional friendly glass of wine or beer.

I abhor undue indulgence as much as any right-thinking man. But that does not blind me to the fact that a vigorous, robust man demands his diversions in fashions which do not appeal to women and busybodies.

It does not make me believe that an occasional glass of beer is one of the stigmata of immorality.

The Church is Ruled by a Monstrous Army of Women, Says the Rev. Raymond Young.

Nor does it make me believe that total abstinence from strong drink should be exalted into a cardinal Christian virtue.

The Kingdom of Heaven is as much open to the man of robust thinking as it is to the feeble of this world. The little people who mistake prejudice for faith, and unctuous piety for robust honesty have no monopoly of the love of God, and are, in fact, strangers to it.

Yet for holding that belief and for saying so from my pulpit I have suffered ostracism from all parts of the country.

A year ago I preached a civic sermon. I pleaded then for tolerance. I asked for a broadminded tolerance for the moral judgment and personal habits of others.

I told them that a little drink would harm no healthy man. I exhorted them to show a little measure of the tolerance upon whose firm rock our Church was built.

I had good authority for my view. The Christian faith has been built up on the devotion of the virile man as much as it has on "refined" piety.

But my plea was answered with a swift outbreak of rebuke.

The Free Churches of this district arrange an annual exchange of pulpits. Very soon after I delivered that sermon I was called upon by two ministers. They informed me that I should no longer be welcome in any other pulpit.

All this meant that I was to be ostracised.

I was to be meted out with the fate that awaits any man who protests against intolerance and the self-complacent assumption of virtue and Christian grace.

This question of drink has been forced upon me in recent events.

It is only an incident in the general protest against the petty-mindedness which dominates the Free Churches. But the storm of abuse which my sermon evoked was astonishing.

Letters poured in. They were disgracefully abusive.

The uproar which ensued would have led you to believe that I had denied the existence of God. It was the beginning of the end of my official ministry.

In my opinion the Christian instincts of the parsons are being stifled. All over the country the ministers are disturbed.

They can see the consequences of this baleful pettiness and spite. They know that it is the real reason of churches being empty.

They know that their services are muzzled by the incessant dread that the bias which rules their church may deprive them of their living.

There are honourable exceptions. Pious hypocrisy is not characteristic of all churchgoers.

But the people of whom I have been speaking hold the predominant influence. We are ruled by a monstrous regiment of women.

That is why I am going out from my church. My own congregation has been kind. But I have been overwhelmed with the self-complacency which has come to rule the churches as a whole. The sinister hold is growing every day more strong.

I do not propose to abandon my service of the Faith.

I hope to run weekly services in a cinema. The music will be as good as L can make it. The choir, I hope, will be an all-male one.

I shall deliver not a sermon, but an address. I shall try with the utmost of my capability to talk to (Continued on Next Column.)

The Very Idea!

INTERPORT TRAGEDY

By Eddie "Long Stop" Kelly

SHANGHAI, we read, was put on the spot by Hongkong in yesterday's inter-port cricket.

It is useless the Shanghai players using recriminations against each other now. The damage is done.

Most of Shanghai's ill-luck, we understand, was due to the crumbling wicket. It's no use, however, Shanghai blaming Hongkong for this. They should blame their wicket-keeper. Alotted the job of keeping the wicket, he fell down on the task.

Furthermore, things are coming to a pretty pass in cricket when a man cannot keep a miserable wicket clean.

We are afraid that modern cricketers are more concerned about displaying their leg before the wicket than looking after the thing.

We are forced to admit, however, that several Hongkong players displayed a lack of sportsmanship. Young Pearce, for instance, deliberately knocked down the little sticks, placed in the ground for the protection of the Shanghai wicket-keeper, no less than six times.

Whether he did this in a spirit of malice or from a misguided sense of humour is not recorded.

Another unsportsmanlike act on the part of Hongkong was forcing Shanghai to pay for 23 of their runs, no less than that number of buys being recorded against the northern visitors.

Pearce was also guilty of tactlessness in dismissing young Mister Leach for a measly 2.

Did he stop and think a minute before he did this? Did he think of young Mr. Leach's friends?

What will Mr. Leach's mother, wife, sweetheart and sisters say? After all, our guests come from Shanghai, which is not British territory. Where is our vaunted British fair play?

But all these unsportsmanlike acts fade into insignificance compared with the one that occurred at 4 p.m.

"At four o'clock (we read) an adjournment was made for tea." TEA! Hongkong offered tea to our guests!

Words fail us. TEA! Passes! "Ostracise Shanghai adepts, meaning 'pass'."

R.S.V.P.

Mr. Edward Kelly regrets that owing to the shroffs becoming so insistent this month it is impossible for him to get his dinner suit out of pawn in time to accept Mr. and Mrs. Whalesaath's kind invitation to a party Saturday.

PEPPERED

A kiss may be mildly pernicious. Meandering, sacred, or vicious. It may be a peck. On the husbandly neck. Or a sibilant slip that's delicious. But when I am fed up or jaded, With the average thing that has faded, It's then— That I dream of the kiss Of a sweet Hongkong miss, Whose muscles and riotous Arteries hiss With a liberal dash Of cayenne!

the people who will listen to me not of dry-as-dust dogmas of authority, but of the things which concern them every day.

I shall invite them to put questions to me when I have sat down. That is one of the defects of our present church organisation.

You can never talk back at the parson. It is assumed that he is the one man who knows . . .

I shall not be afraid of the things which the normal man likes. His church will be my church. He is the man to whom I want to minister.

I feel that I am without the pale. But I shall fight prejudice with all the strength which God in His mercy will vouchsafe to me.

"Oh, I have to go back again. I haven't enough vitamin-A."

THE TARIFF WALLS OF ENGLAND

PUZZLE OF CUSTOMS

WHAT RESIDENTS MAY EXPECT AT HOME

THE LESSONS OF EXPERIENCE

(Telegraph Special.)

Far Eastern residents proceeding on home leave are usually ill-informed on Customs procedure in England.

Not only have they the haziest ideas as to what articles are, and what are not, dutiable, but the majority of travellers are under the impression that small quantities of known dutiable goods can be taken into the country without payment.

The Telegraph has been at pains to investigate the matter from all angles, and is now able, in the light of actual experience and of the precise legal requirements, to make the position clear.

Let it be emphasised from the start that, as a result of the change in Britain's fiscal policy, there is practically nothing which can at present be imported into England from abroad which is not liable to duty.

A "FOREIGN" COUNTRY.

So far as Hongkong residents are concerned, it is wrong to assume that articles bought in this Colony can be taken into England duty-free. This is very far from being the case, indeed, so far as the majority of goods are concerned, Hongkong is on the same footing as a foreign country.

It is not possible here to give a complete list of dutiable articles, but amongst the most important may be mentioned tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, spirits, wine, silk and artificial silk in all forms, wearing apparel of all kinds, woollen, linen and cotton articles, leather goods, perfumes and toilet preparations of all kinds, clocks and watches, cameras, field and opera glasses, motor-car parts, wireless sets, musical instruments, gramophones and gramophone records, typewriters, cutlery, firearms, and, of course, drugs of all kinds.

EVEN PERSONAL WEAR.

Most people are under the impression that personal wearing apparel, and even articles taken into England as gifts, are not liable to duty. This is not correct; no provisions exist in the Customs laws for exemptions in respect of such articles.

The position in this respect is plainly stated in a Customs circular issued to steamship companies which contains the following paragraph:

"All goods acquired abroad or during the voyage, however small the quantity and whether or not they have been worn or used; must be declared to the Customs officer who examines the baggage and must be produced on demand."

CONCESSION MADE.

It should be emphasised, however, that although practically everything taken into the country is liable to duty, in actual practice certain concessions are made, and small quantities of dutiable articles are admitted without payment. These concessions, however, are not usually made in respect of unaccompanied baggage (baggage sent ahead or following the passenger). Above all, it must be remembered that all dutiable goods (even articles in respect of which concessions are usually made) must be declared.

"Personal effects" or gifts are not, as such, immune from duty; all are liable to payment, provided they come within the scope of dutiable articles. What, then, are the obligations resting on the passenger going to England? In the first place, he must make himself acquainted with the list of dutiable articles. Precise information on this point can be secured aboard all passenger liners. Armed with this knowledge, he must, on arrival at the Customs barrier, verbally inform the Customs officer of all dutiable goods amongst his baggage—in other words, "declare" it.

CUSTOMS DECIDE.

Explanations may be added regarding particular articles, such as personal wearing apparel, new or used. It will then devolve on the Customs official to decide whether duty should be paid or concessions made.

As may be imagined, much depends on the type of Customs

LETTERS OF ADMINISTRATION GRANTED

Local estate valued at $70,400 was left by Enrique Brian de Coya, of 1027 Heron Street, Manila, who died on February 3. Letters of administration with the will annexed to the estate have been granted to Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, attorney, for the use and benefit of Enrique Pedro Brian Roxas.

Chin Moy-sho (or she) alias Chin Wong-sho (or she), alias Hong Thow Lon (or Lan) Chin, married woman, of 32, Oxford Street, Boston, died on July 23, 1932, leaving local estate valued at $9,000. Chin (or Chen) Foo (or Fu) tung (or Chung), attorney, has been granted letters of administration for the use and benefit of Chin Wai, alias Chin Ying-doon, husband.

Officer encountered—some are far more officious than others; some will make concessions, where others will not.

In actual practice, however, it will be found that the Customs officials are quite reasonable, provided the passenger is frank and above-board with them. Rarely is duty demanded on personal wearing apparel, either used or new, whilst some latitude is also usually shown in respect of gifts, provided these are not of great value.

A SQUARE DEAL.

The point to be remembered, however, is that the passenger has no right to demand free entry of any dutiable articles, however small the quantity may be, even if they have been used. It is entirely at the discretion of the Customs officer to make concessions or not.

Finally, it is no use trying to fool the Customs, that way, trouble lies. The wise passenger will be perfectly open and frank, if at all, on the side of safety. It will then find, not only that the majority of Customs officers are reasonable and amenable to common-sense argument, but that he will get a square deal and, in most instances, the law will be stretched in his favour.

"WHEN WOMEN SUCCEED IN BUSINESS OR THE PROFESSIONS THEIR SUCCESS IS EXAGGERATED."—Mabel Walker Willebrandt.

There will be a dinner dance at Repulse Bay Hotel on Saturday and a tea dance at Repulse Bay Hotel on Sunday, November 19th, from 4.30 p.m. to 6.30 p.m.

H.M.S. "Kent," flagship of the C-in-C, Admiral Sir Frederic Dreyer, left Shanghai for Kaitung, France, on November 13, and is expected to arrive in Hongkong on November 15.

A nine-year-old boy, Fook Shek-wong, was injured in the right leg, when a motor-car No. 3290 ran into him in Main Street, Shaukiwan, yesterday. The victim was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital.

Swerving his car to avoid a pedestrian in Hommes Road yesterday, a public driver was unable altogether to avoid an accident. The victim, a coolie, was struck by the mudguard, and received head injuries from which he died after admission to the Government Civil Hospital.

When the S.S. Norvik arrived here from Canton yesterday afternoon her Chief Officer, Mr. Oskar Dorentzen, was rushed to Kennedy Town Hospital suffering, it is believed, from small-pox. We were informed by the hospital authorities this morning that the patient is being kept under observation. The Norvik went to the quarantine anchorage at Stonecutters this morning.

The case in which Ma Lei-leung, 26, married woman, is charged with obtaining goods to the value of $34 from the Sincere Company by falsely purporting she was authorised to do so in the name of Mr. Ma Tim-shing of the Sincere Co., was again before Mr. Balfour at the Central Police Court this morning. Mr. T. P. K. Remble, of Messrs. Wilkinson & Grist, appeared for the prosecution, and said he understood the woman was in the Mental Hospital under observation. A formal remand of one week was granted.

Yuen Pun-ming, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Hamilton at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, on two charges of theft and was sentenced to two months' hard labour. The first charge related to the theft of a gold wrist watch from 80, Connaught Road, West, 1st floor, the property of Leung So, and the second charge was larceny by servant of $12, property of Leung Kwok-yuk, accountant, 81, Connaught Road, West, ground floor. Sub-Inspector Fender said defendant had been employed in the shop for about nine months, and stole the money on July 27 and disappeared. After he had gone, a pawn ticket relating to the watch was found in one of the drawers, and it was then discovered that he had stolen it. He was arrested on November 13 by one of the police of the shop.

JAPANESE COURT IN MOURNING

FUNERAL HELD OF PRINCESS ASAKA

Tokyo, Nov. 13. Music and merry-making was stifled in theatres and places of amusement throughout Tokyo yesterday on the occasion of the funeral of Princess Asaka, aunt of Emperor Hirohito.

The Imperial Court is observing a period of 90 days' mourning and has cancelled all public appearances.

The Emperor will not be present at the launching of the submarine depot-ship Taipei on November 16, when his presence had been anticipated.

DIES AT THE AGE OF 84

FAMOUS ARTIST

London, Nov. 14.

The death occurred to-day of Sir David Murray, aged 84, Royal Academician, and well-known landscape painter.

Sir David spent 11 years in business before taking up painting as a profession. While still engaged in commercial pursuits, he had acquired considerable skill as an artist and, when he devoted all his time to art he came rapidly to the front. He received his early training at the Glasgow Art School under Robert Greenlees. His work is marked by a fine sense of colour and genuine, if not deep, appreciation of the more brilliant aspects of Nature.

Up to 1885 he painted mostly in Scotland, but in that year he spent a long season in Picardy and afterwards worked chiefly in the South of England. About 1890 he adopted a new style, devoting more attention to line and light and shade with the result that the glow of his colour was dimmed. But his new method was alien to the natural bent of his mind and his work improved again when he returned to his earlier style with its rich colouring.

OVER-PRETTINESS.

His love for delicate detail such as foliage and flowers in the foreground, which he drew beautifully, was sometimes allowed to disturb the breadth and unity of his design. There was also a tendency to the over-pretentious as characteristic of English landscape painting.

Murray was elected A.R.S.A. in 1881, A.R.A. in 1891 and R.A. in 1905. Knighted in 1918, he became president of the Royal Institute of Painters in Watercolours in 1917 and of the Royal Scottish Academy in 1919. Two of his pictures, "My Love is gone a-sailing" and "In the Country of Constable" were bought for the Tate Gallery. "Young Wheat" is one of his most notable works. "Springtime Tilliedullem", "Loch Linnhe", "The Ferry Rock, Corrie", "Gathering for the Tow-out, Tarbert", "Sonnet Sands and Shallows" are full of beauty. Sometimes audacious in colour and atmospheric effect, they give a striking impression of these bright, beautiful aspects of Scotland in which the colour, like that of a wet pebble, is brought out by the rain.

Murray also did many lovely water colours. Others of his pictures are "Willows", "The Meadow Mirror", "In Summer Time", "A view of Windsor", "River Road", "Marigolds", "Gorse", "Hampshire", "Long After", and "Swedes". He painted many landscapes in Picardy, the Italian Lakes, Venice, the Trossachs, the Island of Lewis and sea-scenes, from the Dorset coast.—British Wireless and Special.

DISARMAMENT OPINION

CLASH OF NATIONAL LEADERS

London, Nov. 14.

Mr. Norman Davis, when he arrived in New York, declared that he was optimistic and undaunted by the aspect of collapse in the Disarmament Conference and that he expected to return to Geneva after consulting with President Roosevelt.

Not so Mr. Henderson, who is contemplating resignation as president of the Conference. He said, when interviewed to-day, that Geneva had not received the support to which it was entitled since the powers, instead of entrusting the conduct of negotiations to their political leaders, were leaving them to technical experts.

He was particularly disappointed with Italy, he said, for assuming the role of a mere observer. "What perseverance and infinite patience will lead to a solution," declared Mr. Davis.

And here it is noteworthy that an article published in the Nationalist Le Matin, Paris, advocates direct Franco-German talks on disarmament. The paper says "it is better to save one's self than to slip to ruin clinging to the skirt of the whole procession."

Committee Meet.

London, Nov. 14. Private meetings at Geneva were held yesterday by two committees appointed by the Bureau of the Disarmament Conference to revise the draft text of the convention on the subject of control and effectiveness. Leading states of the

MOSCOW EXPRESS

To Travel 180 Miles An Hour

YOUNG SOVIET'S INVENTION

Moscow. A young Russian inventor has designed a passenger train which may be described as a "Flying Cigar." He believes it capable of a speed up to 180 miles per hour. Tests are now being made with an experimental model on a specially constructed 8-mile track near Moscow.

This revolutionary train has no wheels and therefore needs no rails. Each car is supported on two huge ball-bearings, 12 feet in diameter, which fits into a concrete groove along which the train runs. The ball-bearings are turned by means of electric motors mounted inside them.

The cars of the train are streamlined; each will eventually be 120 feet long, with accommodation for 100 passengers and weigh 40 tons.—Reuters.

THE "TELEGRAPH'S" GUIDE TO HOME FOOTBALL

F.A. CUP MAY BEGIN TO UPSET LEAGUE FORM

DISTURBING ELEMENT THREAT TO THIRD DIVISION CLUBS

SPURS' VISIT LEEDS AND FACE BIG PROPOSITION

(By "The Pilgrim")

With the draw for the first round proper of the F.A. Cup now filling the minds of those Third Division clubs who hope to go far enough to reap a rich financial harvest, we shall probably find a disturbing element in the game which will influence form to some extent.

At the moment however, the important rounds are too far ahead to be more than a pleasant reminder of the joys to come and there is sufficient in this week-end's fixture list to occupy the mind of the punter.

If my forecast is correct Arsenal will draw a point ahead of Huddersfield but will come no nearer the leaders who entertain the rapidly declining Stoke.

Chelsea Will See the Sights

Chelsea have nothing to look forward to, apart from the sights, when they visit West Bromwich Albion, and I fancy that the other two bottom teams, Newcastle and Sheffield United will not improve though playing on their own grounds.

I consider Arsenal and Birmingham to be certain in this League.

In the Second Division I am optimistic of the chances of Bolton, Grimsby, West Ham, and Bradford, who are playing away though if I feel any doubt at all, it is that Bradford City may spring a surprise.

I cannot see a single visiting club in the Southern Section who have prospects of doing anything better than a draw.

There are, however, few attractive engagements from the punter's point of view, only the Norwich-Charlton match being at all certain.

Paradoxical Rotherham

I expect Chesterfield to make amends at York for their last week's thrashing at the hands of Walsall and Gateshead will probably nip in the bud the hopes of another Rotherham success, especially, (though paradoxically) as the latter are playing at home.

Rangers will be tested when they travel to St. Johnstone in the Scottish First Division and Kilmarnock will have to go all out to get a brace from Queen's Park.

Whatever the results of the other matches, Motherwell, with a nine points lead of the third placed club, have nothing to fear in their home game with Airdrie.

10 MINUTES OF FOOTBALL.

DEAN'S MOVES WHICH BRING GOALS

WILLING TO CO-OPERATE WITH HIS COLLEAGUES

(By "Saracen")

There are two types of centre forward in modern football, one whose aim seems to consist simply in trying to dash between the opposing backs with the hope of being able to get in a shot and another who is always eager for the same chance, but has more resource and combines with the other members of the front line.

Dixie Dean of Everton is a splendid example of the all-round player, and successful as he is as a marksman he also contributes with fine effect to the scoring feats of the other forwards, having the ability to bring all his colleagues into the game.

When the ball is sent down the middle to the centre forward he is usually completely covered and with his back to the goal he is attacking he has not much chance to go on with it. It is under these conditions that the Everton man is perhaps at his best. He has two well known ways of dealing with a straight through pass and the one to adopt depends on the trajectory of the ball when it reaches him.

CLEVER TACTIC.

If the ball arrives head high he realises that it is not much good to try and head it goalwards. To do that is simply to present it to the backs waiting behind him. Instead he tries to head it back to one of his inside colleagues who are coming up and in this way he creates the chance for a direct shot.

Many of the goals of Dunn and Johnson are obtained in this way, their efforts being delivered under the cover of Dean, as it were, and quickly, to surprise the goalkeeper.

If the ball comes low enough to allow Dean to take it with either foot when he is still covered by the opposing centre-half his end-courtesy is to glide it out to the wing where again the outside forward is coming up in anticipation of the pass. Usually these passes are to the left and they permit Dean to collect the ball in his stride and race past the back on the inside, a path which takes him into a shooting position.

Both these moves bring excellent results as the record of Everton indicates, but it follows, of course, that they can only be successful if they are understood and anticipated. This is not difficult inasmuch as what Dean will do is largely determined by the type of pass he receives.

Syd Puddefoot Now Coaching In Turkey

WITH so many old players seeking jobs it comes as welcome news that the F.A. have decided to set up a Committee to consider the question of a coaching scheme for boys.

ONE is badly needed, for in addition to the good it would do to the game, it would provide a suitable opening for players at the end of their careers.

Word has arrived from Syd Puddefoot, the international forward, who is coaching the senior club in Turkey.

HIS team have won the first two matches under his control, one of them in Bulgaria. Puddefoot's English methods at first made the players feel stiff and sore, but now they are perfectly fit and making rapid progress. Puddefoot is perfectly happy and content with his new position.

TALKING of brothers — there were two brothers in Ireland's half-back line in match against England in Belfast.

MITCHELL (Chelsea), had to cry off owing to ankle trouble and his place at left-half was taken by S. Jones (Distillery), younger brother of the pivot, J. Jones (Linfield).

JOSEPH Lindsay the former Dumbarton and Scottish International footballer, who died recently, had a wonderful record.

HE was centre-forward for Dumbarton when they won the Scottish Cup in the season of 1882-83, and he played eight times for Scotland—against England in 1881, 1884, 1885 and 1886, and against Wales in 1880, 1881, 1884 and 1885.

NEWPORT County lost £1,128 on last season.

MILLWALL are still weak in attack: Alexander, from Bradford City, in his first match for the London team was not very effective.

methods. No frills, just hard work. Nolan has a fine understanding with his wing men.

UNTIL Luton have better marksmen they will never get the reward of their attractive combination forward.

FOR the first time since he joined Mansfield in 1931 Harry Johnson was dropped from the team to meet Rochdale.

HIS place at centre-forward was taken by Methven, son of Jimmy Methven, the old Derby County international, whom Barnsley are anxious to secure.

E. J. Drake, the Southampton F.C. centre-forward, is definitely staying with the club which introduced him to professional football.

MR. George Kay, manager of Southampton F.C., emphasised this fact in a statement when he said: "I have had more than a dozen offers for Drake from first-class clubs and rejected them all."

"YOU may take it from me that whatever offer I may have will be turned down. We owe something to our supporters. Our position is different from that of last season, when we were compelled to part with Keeping and Arnold."

Drake To Remain With Southampton After All

Charlton Athletic have secured the transfer from Reading of M. Forster, a fullback. Forster joined Reading from Tottenham Hotspur a few seasons ago.

PLYMOUTH Argyle, who signed on Sam Kirkwood, a right fullback, from Portadown, the Irish League Club have a list of players on the books higher than ever before in their history.

ALEXANDER, Bradford City's clever right wing forward, has been transferred to Millwall. Mr. McCracken, the Millwall manager, was manager of Hull City at the time Alexander played for that club. He has made frequent efforts to secure the services of Alexander, for whom a substantial fee has been paid.

IT WAS LUCKY SHANGHAI NEEDED 350 RUNS TO WIN

VISITORS HONOURABLY DEFEATED

BRAVE EFFORT IN FACE OF GIGANTIC TASK

(By R. Abbt)

IN my notes of yesterday I had conjectured that Hongkong might add another fifty and that they would be out in time to give Shanghai a short period of batting before the luncheon interval.

Actually they got sixty-three and set Shanghai three hundred and fifty to win, and gave them half an hour's batting before tiffin. No wicket fell however.

I also said that Shanghai would have to bat on a very bad wicket and here I was wrong, for, as it sometimes does, the wicket definitely improved and the Visitors played their fourth innings on a wicket which played very nearly as well as it did in the first.

And a very gallant fight they made of it. I fancy most of us felt glad that it was not too hundred and fifty that they required.

AN UPHILL FIGHT

The first danger that threatened them was the loss of a wicket before lunch, but this Simpson and Stokes managed to avert. They very wisely played a defensive cricket, and resumed the same tactics after lunch. But at twenty-eight Owen Hughes tried Pearce and Simpson just touched what was, to him, a leg break.

But for a long time this was the sum total of success, and with eighty runs on the board things looked a bit ominous, and nasty sums in subtraction were done by the pessimists.

However the answer was still two hundred and seventy more, and then Alec Pearce again came to the rescue, and broke one back, bowling round the wicket, to get Madar lb.w., and two were down. The last shade of anxiety one had was when Stokes and Booth seemed to have dug themselves in.

But at last Stokes' fine innings came to an end, though I think the bowler was lucky to get the decision. Leach came in to attempt a come-back but when he was caught fun was too good to last, but during the quarter of an hour for which it did last he collected forty runs.

THE LAST WICKET

Even when Terry was stumped at two hundred and one and Shanghai were dead Mayhew and T. Madar refused to lie down and kept the last wicket going for nearly three-quarters of an hour. But Pearce as usual came to the rescue and got Madar to return one to him when the score still was a hundred and seventeen runs in arrears.

Both men had batted uncommonly well. Indeed the mere one run of the second innings the loss one understood how Shanghai gave such an inglorious display in the first. The only explanation is that they were thoroughly rattled by the first ball dismissing one of their best batsmen.

A SUCCESS

Hongkong and Harry Owen Hughes are to be congratulated on a brilliant success.

I do not propose to deal at present with the collective or individual merits of the teams. That will be done in articles written after the Malaya-Shanghai match.

But I cannot refrain from congratulating my old friend Tom Hayward very heartily on his brilliant success both with the bat, and as a first slip, a position in which he has not fielded for years.

Battling like his—and Teddy Fincher's—was just what was wanted to stiffen the side. Pearce's fine bowling—six for seventy on a fairly good wicket—calls for high praise and if he did not get as many with the bat as was expected, he certainly got far more wickets.

MALAYA VS. SHANGHAI

To-day Malaya take on Shanghai and I do not know if their long wait will have done them any good. At the time of writing I do not know if there is any change in the side.

Of course the logical result is easy to work out. Malaya beat Hongkong. Hongkong beat Shanghai. Therefore a fortiori Malaya will beat Shanghai.

But I'm not so sure about it and unless R.N. Hamilton can pull out a couple of big innings I rather think that the result will be the other way. Anyway it will be a most interesting game for those who can get off to see it.

I have been asked to remind those interested that the Interport Dinner will be held on Friday evening at the Gloucester Building. Lists are posted in the Hongkong and Kowloon Cricket Clubs.

PLAYERS ENTERTAINED

Musical Programme at Cricket Club

Members of the Hongkong, Shanghai and Malaya Interport Cricket teams attended a concert at the Hongkong Cricket Club last night. A large gathering of members of the Hongkong Cricket Club and several ladies were also present.

The "Lincoln" band's orchestra first held the stage, and rendered three jazz tunes which were well received by the gathering, after which the Hongkong Cricket Club Crankers gave some selections from Gilbert and Sullivan.

The tit-bit of the evening was a humorous monologue and songs by Rev. Lewis Bryan, which was loudly applauded. Mr. Hyde-Lay also rendered a song, and several other items were contributed by other gentlemen. Mr. G. W. True, showed his marvellous technique at the piano, by giving a few delightful dance music tunes.

DOROTHY ROUND AND MARY HEELEY

MISS MARY HEELEY IN ACTION.

HOW I SAW IT FROM THE PRESS BOX

(By "Veritas").

IT was just as a section of the members' pavilion were discussing big hitters they had known, that Sam Isaacs of Shanghai walked to the wicket yesterday and gave the crowd, watching the interport struggle between Hongkong and Shanghai, the biggest thrill of the whole match.

SHADES OF JESSOP! With a mighty swing of the bat (but rhythmic mind you and not blind) he fairly knocked the cover off the ball to score 40 runs in 16 minutes.

HE was no respecter of persons or reputations. The fact that Pearce had kept the batsmen tied down for an hour and a half before that Pereira had captured Leach's wicket with a beautiful ball. These did not count with Isaacs. He proceeded to hit Pearce for a six and three fours; he scored nine runs in three balls off Leach, and a couple of fours off Pereira.

LIVES? Yes, he had three, and Pereira was the guilty party in each case. But weren't the crowd delighted to see him dropped? The more sixers and boundaries that Isaacs could collect, the better pleased were they.

PEARCE was the chief sufferer. Isaacs should have been out after he had scored his first nine off Beck. Pereira, fielding out in the country failed to get under a very high hit, and although he got his hands to the ball, it wouldn't stick. In the same over he missed another chance, although in this instance he partially lost sight of the ball through Owen Hughes also running for the catch. His third blunder was quite inexcusable, receiving the ball at forward short leg.

BUT apart from these let-offs, it was a grand innings and did much to stimulate the waning interest of the onlookers. Although his big hitting suggests that Isaacs did nothing but slash at the ball, this is far from being correct. Isaacs reminded me very vividly of George Collins, the former Kent left-handed cricketer. His stance and strokes were almost identical, and Collins very often indulged in a first class standard of batting!

THE luck was not entirely with Shanghai in this last innings. Stokes, for instance, had every cause to be dissatisfied with his dismissal. A very half-hearted appeal for lb.w. by Pearce met with an affirmative response. From the press box it looked as though the ball had pitched well outside of the stumps. In addition to which Stokes was distinctly hit on the thigh.

AT the time too, he was batting with the utmost confidence. He had passed his 50 and looked good enough for another. Although I wouldn't go so far as to suggest that he had remained Hongkong would not have won, I feel pretty confident that there would have been considerably less than 117 runs in it at the close.

FRANKLY Shanghai were definitely getting on top when Stokes was given marching orders. He and Booth had sent the total along to 116, two wickets only having fallen.

They were both playing the bowling well and scoring whenever the opportunity presented itself. The dismissal of Stokes altered the whole trend of the game.

BUT the end was finally brought in sight when Milne accomplished a very smart piece of fielding to run out Booth. He gathered the ball and hit the wicket in the one movement, both being out by feet.

THE wicket rarely appeared difficult. Even Pereira and Beck rose only a few inches above stump height. Only Donald Leach and Isaacs bowled with any consistent accuracy. Leach to Shanghai was as Pearce to Hongkong. The batting was fair to middling. The cheap dismissals of Pat Madar considerably helped the local team. Yet of those expected to make the runs, only Leach on Monday and Stokes yesterday came off.

PEARCE has a delightful action, slight as the ball well, is can turn or go straight through with cleverly concealed deliveries. Yesterday's figures were very unfair to him.

ALTHOUGH Shanghai redeemed themselves, it cannot be said that they ever reached expectations. Only Donald Leach and Isaacs bowled with any consistent accuracy. Leach to Shanghai was as Pearce to Hongkong. The batting was fair to middling. The cheap dismissals of Pat Madar considerably helped the local team. Yet of those expected to make the runs, only Leach on Monday and Stokes yesterday came off.

IT is probably unfair to suggest that Shanghai were too confident of victory. But I think they felt their attack was good enough to get Hongkong out for less than 150 in both innings, and when this was disproved, their batting went to pieces.

OWEN Hughes has every reason to look back to the 1933 Interport with pride and satisfaction. His work as a captain, bowler, batsman and fielder was above reproach. If there was a tendency to persist a little too much with Pearce, the shortcoming, if such it be, was offset by the manner in which he handled his fast bowlers. Anyhow Pearce was always bowling well enough to justify an extra over.

ALTOGETHER an entertaining match, with the high spots, Fincher's innings on Saturday, Leach's fighting knock on Monday, Pearce's and Milne's bowling, Hayward's clever innings, and the Hongkong fielding.

NEGOTIATIONS IN HAND

(By "Veritas").

Miss Dorothy Round and Miss Mary Heeley, England's two leading women tennis players, are due to arrive in Hongkong on the P. and O. Comorin at 6 o'clock Friday morning.

I understand the Lawn Tennis Association are in communication with the players with a view to their appearing in exhibition matches on Friday afternoon.

The L.T.A. are at present awaiting a reply from the two ladies. According to information received from Shanghai, there is every reason to believe that they will be willing to play.

K.C.C. PROBABLE VENUE

Unfortunately their visit clashes with the Malaya v Shanghai interport cricket match, and there seems little chance of the tennis. If arranged, being played on the Hongkong Cricket Club.

The Kowloon Cricket Club, however, have offered the use of their ground for Friday afternoon. No details as to the probable programme are yet available, although

SPORTS MEETING.

Schools At Cheung Chau To Hold First Contest.

AN ANNUAL AFFAIR.

Cheung Chau, Nov. 13. Under the auspices of the K.C.C., the Headmaster of Cheung Chau Government School, Mr. Cheung King-pak, B.A., and the authorities of the different schools of Cheung Chau, an inter-school athletic meeting has been organized and arranged to be held on the Cheung Chau Residents Association Football Ground (by kind permission of the President of the Association) on Saturday next, commencing at 9.00 a.m.

There are seven vernacular schools, both boys' and girls', and the Government School participating in the meet, with no less than 300 competitors who are divided into nine groups according to their age, heights and sexes.

The heats were run yesterday afternoon, but as there are forty-eight events altogether, they have to be continued to-day. Though the Clerk of the Weather was not very kind on the occasion, as there were no great banks of clouds to obscure the sun, all contestants exhibited their best skill and ability in struggling for a place in the final. Their excellent display won much admiration from spectators who filled the grounds.

The schools and the Sports Committee are much indebted to the public for subscriptions towards the sports fund, and especially to Messrs. Cheung King-pak, Hon. Kau-fung, Wong Chun-shing, Wong Wai-chuk, Tong, and the Heads of Kailongs for their generous donations of silver cups for the Group Championships.

Messrs. Chow Kook, Chan Kaiman and Man Chong-ki of the Government School are responsible for all the field and clerical work.

LOCAL HOCKEY.

Y.M.C.A. Defeat Radio In Friendly Fixture.

TEN PLAYERS A SIDE.

The Y.M.C.A. vs. Radio contest at King's Park yesterday, defeated the Radio Sports Club by three goals to one. Both sides fielded only ten men. F. E. Lammer being absent from the "Y" forward line and Man Singh from between the sticks for the Radio. Besides being a man short the Radio were without the services of Mohinder Singh and Jagreet Singh, J. Dyke and L. B. Kitchell being injured in their positions in the half line.

During the opening stages of the game P. Singh went in goal Husan falling back in his place at right back. The "Y" set the pace and kept the Radio hemmed in their own half for some ten minutes after the start. G. E. Lammer opened the scoring following the corner and shortly afterwards G. Fowler increased the lead after P. Singh saved well from Lammer. The Radio then got through to the Y.M.C.A. and their goal saw some anxious moments before Selk cleared to send Lammer away. He passed out to Baldwin, but the latter was tackled and robbed by P. Singh who had come out to his old position, with Kitchell between the sticks. Attar Singh went back in place of Kitchell and the Radio played a four forward line.

FINE SOLO RUN.

In the second half Baldwin made a good run from his own half and passed inside when tackled by Grewel. Lammer took the pass and sent across to P. Fowler. The latter took the ball close to the back line and centred. Kitchell mis-kicked and as the ball trickled along the goal-line Lammer tapped it in. Before time, Attar Singh, following a brilliant solo run from his own half, beat Shields to reduce the lead. Selk and Price played well in the Y.M.C.A. defence and McLean was the pick of the halves. The forwards combined well, S. Fowler on the right wing being fast and responsible for many good centres. Grewel and Singh did some sterling work in the Radio back line while Dyke, who was making his first appearance for the Radio, was the pick of the halves. The forwards played their usual fast game but found their match in the Y.M.C.A. backs.

C.B.A. BEAT VARSITY.

In a friendly game at King's Park the C.B.A. defeated the University by two goals to one. The game was marred by an unfortunate accident when Ching collided with Wilson and sustained a nasty cut to the eye which necessitated his leaving the field and receiving medical attention at Kowloon Hospital.

The C.B.A. opened the scoring through Johnson and before the interval Sousa equalized. Johnson gave the C.B.A. the lead in the second half.

SAM SMITHS.

But there was plenty of shouting to come. People had been talking about Isaacs' big hitting when he made thirty or so, and pulled off the match by one wicket in 1925.

One wretched fellow (I hope and believe that he came from Shanghai) had remarked that Sam hadn't made any runs since. A libel of course but the left-hander was out to show them he could hit. And he certainly did. Making most of his runs by smashing hits he scored for the greater part on the off, though his six off Pearce was an on drive to the Law Courts. He had some luck of course as he should have been caught in front of the public stand when he had not reached ten, but it was a very nasty catch. The

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

UTILITIES SHOW WEAKNESS

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 2,000,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market was that the market was steady, with a slight decline in utilities and the California Railroad Commission reducing the rates of Pacific Gas & Electric Co., whereupon professional speculators drew their support and started selling which swamped tickers.

Our New York office cable: Stocks:—The market yielded moderately to profit-taking but met good demand on recessions.

Wheat:—The action of Sterling turned buyers to wheat and further advances were secured with reactions when will follow.

Cotton:—Great interest is being shown in the forthcoming Treasury announcement with tendency to anticipate strength of Government credit and relegation of paper currency inflation. The South was selling and there was profit-taking on advances. Fine goods mills report scarcity of new business. Spot demand light. Basis high and firm.

Silver:—The market was very strong in view of pronounced weakness of the U.S. dollar but declined in the afternoon on profit-taking. There was rumour current that the U.S. Government may issue over one billion dollars of silver certificates and a basis of sixty-five cents for silver.

Cable received at 11.31 p.m. during our Night Service:—Committee appointed to speed liquidation of three billion dollars assets of closed national and state banks.

The R.C. gold price yesterday was $33.65 up 11 cents. The opening figure yesterday of the Dow-Jones Industrial average was 90.20.

ADMIRALTY JOINS BIG CRUISER BUILDING RIVALRY

GALLANT INNINGS BY "BABE" OF BALAYAN ELEVEN

had scored three, 23-3. Alvis opened his scoring with a single off Wilson, and then faced Isaacs for a maiden over.

SMART RUNNING.

Showing some hesitancy at the start, Eu and Alvis did some smart running between the stumps, but at 20, Eu was bowled neck and crop by Wilson. The Chinese had eight to his credit. Up to his dismissal, he had been batting quite well.

Gill was next man in, and scored a four off Isaacs, but played back to this bowler's next delivery, only to find his balls disturbed, 30-5-6.

Croome came out to bat, limping and had Gibson to run for him. He was suffering from an injury to his knee.

Isaacs picked his field round Alvis, but the "baby" of the Malayan team was not worried at all, hitting the ball with the full face of the bat every time.

ALVIS IN FORM.

A four by Croome raised the 40 which was reached in 54 minutes.

Alvis had a narrow escape when a delivery from Isaacs kicked up suddenly. Leach was fielding at silly mid-off and made a vain dive for the catch. Alvis scored a four off the next ball and got into double figures in 30 minutes.

Leach took over from Wilson and sent down a maiden over to Croome.

Two successive boundary hits by Alvis took the score to 60.

In the next over, Leach took off Isaacs and put on Booth, who gave away four runs in his first over. Alvis hitting him to the Queen's Road railings for a boundary.

This raised Alvis to 20, reached in 40 minutes, and hoisted the 60 in 67 minutes.

STUBBORN CROOME.

Despite his injured leg, Croome presented a stubborn front to all the Shanghai bowlers and only tried to score off the loose ones.

Alvis lifted one from Leach perilously near a sinder, but got away with it. He had another narrow escape when he cut Booth for a four. Wilson, fielding in the slips, anticipated the shot, but the ball went to the wrong side of him.

Alvis got his 30 in 49 minutes.

PARTNERSHIP HOLDS.

In a vain effort to break up this partnership which had already reached 40 runs, Leach put on Pat Madar. Alvis was not to be tempted to hit out and was satisfied with a single. He was not comfortable facing Leach, however, and failed to score off the Shanghai skipper.

Eighty went up after a four by Croome off Madar. He reached double figures after batting for 45 minutes.

The luncheon interval was taken with the score at 82, Alvis being 34 not out and Croome 14 not out.

ALVIS HITS OUT

When play was resumed afteriffin Isaacs bowled to Croome from the Supreme Court end, and off the last ball, Croome sent him to the Chater Road boundary.

At the other end, Wilson was sent to the railings twice by Alvis, who thus reached his 40 in 64 minutes, and incidentally sent up the 90. Both these shots were perfect square cuts and never in danger of being stopped.

Isaacs beat Croome once, but the ball went clear of the off stump. Alvis had the same escape off Wilson in the next over.

A straight carpet drive by Alvis off Wilson sent up the 100, in 93 minutes.

Immediately, Croome was dismissed by Isaacs. Pat Madar holding a catch at silly leg.

THE ROT STOPPED.

Croome's partnership with Alvis had put on 64 runs for the sixth wicket and had saved Malaya from a complete collapse. Croome had been in for two minutes short of an hour for his 19 runs. He had batted soundly, and was wise enough to allow his younger teammate to do most of the scoring. The score board showed 100-4-19.

With three off Leach, Alvis completed his 50, taking 76 minutes in the process. He was given a rousing reception when his score was put up.

Alvis caused amusement while running these last three runs. He was so much faster than Jonkians that he had already completed "the course" when Jonkians was starting on the third lap.

Hitting every shot hard, Jonkians had had luck in not being able to score. All his shots went to hand, but he glanced Leach beautifully for a four.

Through a piece of misfielding by Sinclair, Malaya reached 118 in 112 minutes. Sinclair allowed a shot by Alvis to roll to the boundary for a four.

ALVIS GIVES A CHANCE.

After skying Isaacs to just short of third man, Alvis gave a chance to Jenkins at fine leg off Leach, but the folder dropped the catch.

Shanghai met with success in the same over, when after crossing for a single, Jonkians was given marching orders for obstruction to Leach. He had made only five. The score-board read 115-7-15.

Willis now came out to join Alvis and played Isaacs very carefully. After making 50 without giving a chance, Alvis for a spell appeared rather shaky. He was very uncomfortable facing Leach, off whom he failed to score. Willis opened his scoring with a single off Isaacs, and four byes then sent up the 120. Play had now been in progress for 123 minutes.

TEN OFF LEACH.

Although Leach had three men close in for him, Alvis lifted the Shanghai skipper over these fielders' heads for a four, to reach his 60 in 95 minutes. He hit another four and a two in the same over and enabled the 130 to be hoisted. He had 10 runs off the Shanghai skipper in this over.

A short one from Isaacs was pulled to the leg boundary by Willis, and with the addition of another four byes, the 140 went up in 130 minutes.

In an attempt to get rid of Alvis, Leach rang the bowling changes. He took off the tall left-hander, and put on Jenkins, but this met with no success.

ALVIS DEFIANT.

Leach had two out-fields for Alvis, but the "baby" proved a giant-killer by lifting the Shanghai captain clear for yet another boundary to take his own score to 70. He had been batting for 106 minutes.

Willis got into double figures with a four off Leach, and sent up the 150 in 188 minutes.

Put on from the Naval Yard end, Madar got a wicket with his first ball. Willis jumped out to hit him, missed and failed to get back in time. Mayhew had done his job only too well. Willis had made 14. The score was now 157-8-14.

Morgan did not shape too well in his first over. It was more by luck than anything else that he kept his wicket intact. Madar beat him with almost every ball, but failed to hit the stumps.

MADAR UNLUCKY.

P. Madar had bad luck in not claiming Alvis' wicket. Alvis lifted him high over Isaacs, at mid-on, but the fielder failed to hold a really difficult catch.

This let-off encouraged the batsman who reached his 80 in 123 minutes.

With two off Madar and a single off Isaacs, Alvis equalled Hayward's score of 83, and another single off Madar gave Alvis the distinction of being the top scorer of the series. He was given an ovation by the spectators.

The 170 went up in 150 minutes. Leach came back now for Madar, and off his first ball, Morgan took a single to signalise his 10.

ALVIS PLAYS ON.

With a four off Isaacs, Alvis reached his 90, and with this score, he had the misfortune to play on to his wicket. It was a bad stroke. The ball appeared to be two straight to be cut, and Alvis was attempting this stroke.

He had batted extraordinarily well, and if he was a trifle lucky, it speaks well for his pluckiness in defying the Shanghai attack which definitely had the upper hand for the first hour of this morning's play. He saw the score from 20 to 181, and of the 152 runs put on when he was at the wicket, he contributed 90. He had looked set for his century, and it was really bad luck to get out when and in the way he did.

AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX

NEW SHIPS TO BE BUILT WITH 15 GUNS

1933 PROGRAMME REVISION

London, Nov. 14.

Types of ships now being built by the Japanese and United States have compelled the Admiralty to embark upon a programme for bigger cruisers.

An official announcement to this effect was made in the House of Commons last night.

New cruisers for Japan are reputed to carry fifteen six-inch guns and the United States is now putting fifteen six-inch guns into her new ships.

Britain has been compelled to alter her policy accordingly. A new type of ship is to be designed. It will be a vessel of about 9,000 tons, and will be armed with fifteen guns.

FIRST LORD'S ANNOUNCEMENT

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyre Monsell, announced that the Government had, with much regret, decided to revise the 1933 Naval programme. He recalled that the original 1933 programme had included one ship of the Leander class of cruisers, of 7,250 tons, and three of the Arethusa class of cruisers, of 5,400 tons, each armed with eight and six inch guns respectively.

The policy of building cruisers of comparatively small tonnage had been adopted in the hope that other nations would follow our lead.

Also in July 1932, the United Kingdom delegation at Geneva put forward proposals for a reduction of future cruisers to 7,000 tons with a maximum gun-calibre of 6.1, in the hope that this would be generally accepted.

Unfortunately, neither of these hopes had been realised.

JAPAN'S NEW SHIPS.

In 1931, Japan laid down two cruisers of 8,500 tons reputed to mount 15 six-inch guns.

It was learned that she was now laying down two more of the same dimensions and that the construction of yet another two, making six in all, was projected.

The United States also has already announced her intention of building four cruisers of 10,000 tons with 15 six-inch guns.

If, therefore, the British programme already approved were to be carried out, the new cruisers would be definitely inferior to those being developed by other Powers.

SERIOUS DILEMMA.

As was known, Britain's total cruiser tonnage was limited by the London Naval Treaty.

And the result was that they had been placed on the horns of a very serious dilemma.

If they proceeded with the original programme of cruisers, all the cruisers they would be building would be definitely inferior to certain of the cruisers which were being built by the other Naval Powers.

REDUCED NUMBERS.

If, on the other hand, they were to build any cruisers comparable with those vessels, they must reduce the number from four to three.

The first alternative could not be accepted and, accordingly, after most anxious consideration, and with much regret, they proposed to revise the 1933 programme so as to include two cruisers of a new type of about 9,000 tons, with increased armaments, and one cruiser of the Arethusa type of about 5,200 tons.

This alteration, the First Lord pointed out, would not involve any increase in the cost of 1933 programme—indeed some small reduction in its cost was expected to result.

gratification—indeed some small reduction in its cost was expected to result.

TREATY RIGHTS.

He added that the United States and Japan, under the terms of the London Naval Treaty, were fully entitled to build ships of the size they contemplated.

Nevertheless, it would be the continued policy of the British Government to endeavour, by common agreement, both to restrict the number of vessels of the larger size as much as possible, and also to reduce the maximum size of cruisers to be constructed in the future.—British Wireless.

DOLLAR'S FALL

REAL ANXIETY IN UNITED STATES

There is very real alarm in America over the situation brought about by the President's gold plan, which has brought the desired inflation of the dollar but which now appears to be out of hand. There is talk of stabilisation at a near date.

The money market is still restless, but sterling is firm. American dollars were offered heavily to steady the gold currencies which were threatening to slump in sympathy.

Anxiety Felt.

New York, Nov. 14. Depreciation of the dollar, which it is understood exceeds expectations, is arousing some anxiety. It is generally agreed that the President's gold plan will be continued but only in such a way as will not invite foreign reprisals or affect the United States credit.—Reuter.

Steadying Influence. London, Nov. 14. A heavy general offering of American dollars is the intervention taken to control the money market situation and prevent gold currencies weakening further.

Sterling today has been firm. There is a premium of sixpence over the franc included in today's price of gold. About 129 bars of the commodity were sold at 128 shillings 7 pence an ounce, which represents a decline of 6½ pence.—Reuter.

Stabilisation Near. Washington, Nov. 14. A commentator on the gold situation here, Mr. David Lawrence, economic expert, declared today that America was in the midst of a financial crisis the gravity of which cannot be overestimated.

He draws attention to the effects on Government bonds of the present dollar decline, predicting the stabilisation of the dollar at a much earlier date than anyone has anticipated.

The financial edition of the Evening Post carries a story to the effect that the Government cannot much longer ignore the effect of the gold plan upon Government bonds and the flight of capital abroad.

It is especially feared that dollar inflation will get out of control.—Reuter.

CHIEF SECRETARY OF ZANZIBAR

(Telegraph Special.)

A former Hongkong Cadet, in the person of Mr. S. B. B. McElderry, has, it is learned to-day, been appointed Chief Secretary of the Zanzibar Protectorate, succeeding in that post Mr. R. H. Crofton, who was also for many years in the service of the Hongkong Government.

Mr. McElderry was in Hongkong for a period of nearly twenty years, from 1909 to 1928, his first appointment, after he had passed his final examination in Chinese, being that of acting Assistant District Officer for the Northern district of the New Territories. He held various posts until he was seconded for military service in the Great War, later returning to the Colony and being posted as acting Chief Assistant to the S.C.A. In 1920, he was attached to the Colonial Secretariat, and later became Assistant Colonial Secretary and Clerk of Councils.

OPIMUM CONFERENCE.

In 1922, he was seconded for service in the Secretariat of the League of Nations (Opium Section) and in November of that year he attended the Oriental Red Cross Conference at Bangkok as representative of the British Eastern Colonies with regard to the opium question.

Subsequently, he served in various Government departments and in 1927, whilst on leave, he represented Hongkong at the Colonial Office Conference.

In the following year, Mr. McElderry returned to Hongkong, but his health became seriously impaired, and he was then transferred to Tanganyika as Deputy Secretary to the Commissioner.

The change being made in the hope that he would recover his health. He has held this post ever since. Whilst in Hongkong, he married a sister of Mr. G. N. Orme, a former Director of Education.

MARKED ABILITIES.

During his lengthy residence in Hongkong, Mr. McElderry won golden opinions both for his marked abilities and his charm of manner, and his transfer from the Colony was widely regretted.

Born in 1885, Mr. McElderry was educated at Campbell College, Belfast, and Trinity College, Dublin, where he was matric scholar and won his B.A. degree, being senior mod. in mathematics and in experimental science.

The new appointment which he has now secured represents promotion, the post carrying a salary of £1,600 per annum, compared with £1,350 for the Deputy Secretaryship of Tanganyika.

PROTECTORATE.

Zanzibar has been a British Protectorate since 1890, and in 1912 it was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office. It is maintained under the administration of H.M. Government through the Governor of Kenya Colony. The Sultan is H.H. Seyyid Sir Khalifa bin Harub, and there is a British Resident.

Mr. R. H. Crofton, who now vacates the post which Mr. McElderry assumes, served in Hongkong from 1903 to 1918, when he was transferred as Assistant Chief Secretary to Zanzibar. He later served in Tanganyika and became Chief Secretary at Zanzibar in 1928.

DUBLIN UPROAR

Dublin, Nov. 14. Noisy scenes were witnessed in the police court when a young man was sentenced to two months' hard labour for assaulting a man wearing a Flanders poppy who attended a meeting of the Anti-Imperialist League.

There was a Republican demonstration after sentence was passed, whereupon the Magistrate ordered an interdict to be put in the dock and forthwith sentenced him to six months' imprisonment, when the man refused to enter into recognisances to keep the peace. There were renewed cries of "Up with the Republic" and "Up with de Valera" as the prisoners were removed.—Reuter.

FATAL 'BUS MISHAP.

AN AMPUTATION ON PROMISE OF HAWKER'S LICENCE

It was revealed by Dr. G. H. Thomas at a motor accident inquiry at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon, that the deceased man consented to have his limb amputated on the promise of a hawk's licence.

The inquest, conducted by Mr. Balfour sitting as Coroner, was into the death of Leung Lun, 51, a shop foh, who died as the result of being knocked down by a Vulcan bus of the China Motor Bus Company in Queen's Road Central opposite the Central Market on the afternoon of October 18 last. The jury empanelled comprised Messrs. W. L. Mackenzie (foreman), F. H. Glover and Chan Shiu-wah.

Dr. Thomas, medical officer, Government Civil Hospital, said the man was admitted to hospital with his right limb (lower part of the right thigh to the sole of the foot) badly torn. He was in a condition of extreme shock. Nothing was done to the limb then because of his condition and he was treated for his shock condition first. Permission for amputation could not be obtained at this stage. The next day the limb began to fester.

The doctor continued: "I asked his permission for amputation. He refused at first, and then when I told him it was a question of life and death he stated that he would consent if I could promise him a hawk's licence to earn a living. I thereupon telephoned Mr. King, Deputy Inspector General of Police, and he kindly promised to help. Having got that permission I took the man to the theatre and rapidly guillotined the limb off, without making a proper job of it. He seemed better after that. However, he later gradually sank and died at 10.40 p.m. on October 23. He was almost stone deaf. Death I attribute to the shock of the injury plus exhaustion, together with a certain amount of blood poisoning."

Man Deaf.

Replying to the jury, the doctor said the man was deaf when admitted to hospital.

Ng On, a foh of the Wo Cheung Dye Shop, said he had worked with the deceased for four years. Deceased was deaf.

Constable Hari Singh deposed to seeing the man struck by the mudguard. He telephoned for the ambulance.

Traffic-Sergeant McInnes said he tested the brakes of the 'bus and found them in good working order.

Wan Pui, driver of the motor bus, said he was driving from Tai Hang to West Point and when near the Central Market the man came out from the side walk. Witness did not know whether he had his intention of crossing the road or catching the 'bus. His right leg was caught by the hub of the front near wheel and when the bus was pulled up his leg was dragged along with his head facing westward.

Replying to questions by the Coroner, the driver said he sounded his horn several times before seeing the deceased as there were many people about. The man was

NEW STEAMER

VESSEL TO REPLACE THE OLD SHUNTEN

Work has begun at the Taikoo Dock on a new coastal steamer for Messrs. Butterfield and Swire.

The new vessel, which will be an express coaster capable of making 10 to 17 knots an hour, is to be named the Shuntien.

The new vessel will be completed some time next summer and will replace the old Shuntien which is now on the Shanghai-Chief-of-Mountain service. The Shuntien will then be withdrawn and scrapped.

At the present time, only the steamer Shengking of Butterfield and Swire calls at Tientsin en route to North China. As she is equipped with more powerful engines than the old Shuntien and Tungchow, she is able to make this call without any loss of time either en route north or on the return to Shanghai from the northern ports. However, after the new Shuntien is completed, the Company will probably have two ships calling at Tientsin as the latter vessel also will be able to make the same call as the Shengking without any loss of time. The Shengking caters for the very latest in steam conveniences for coastal steamers and the new Shuntien will be likewise equipped.

The Tungchow will continue to go direct from Shanghai to the north as at present.

Hupei Trials.

The steamer Hupei, intent addition to the Butterfield and Swire fleet, underwent her trials in Hongkong yesterday afternoon, and it is anticipated that she will be placed in commission shortly.

In line with the usual progressive policy of this firm, the Hupei, well-known in China waters, has been sold to scrapers and will be replaced in the near future. As soon as the new Shuntien is launched from Taikoo it is probable that yet another new vessel will be laid on the stocks.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"Cleaning Up" the British Lion comedy which is being shown at the King's Theatre on Friday, is a film which is certain to cure even the most persistent of the "blues". The story deals with the adventures of a scion of a noble family, who decides to work for his living instead of marrying a wealthy heiress. He gets a job as a vacuum cleaner salesman, and his many misadventures end up by him accidentally getting on the stage during an intermission, and being seen busily demonstrating his vacuum cleaner when the curtain goes up. George Gee, the famous stage star, plays the part of Tony Pumpford, the son of Lord Pumpford, Betty Astor, Dora Burghay, of Co-Optimist fame, and Barbara Gott are also in the cast of "Cleaning Up". Nobody should miss this British laughter riot, which promises to be the funniest film seen here for many years. It is a topping piece of entertainment.

"Hold Your Man" Hollywood was combed for a three-years-old boy with Clark Gable's smile and Jean Harlow's hair to play the part of their son in "Hold Your Man," their new co-starring vehicle which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre from Sunday. In the story, an original by Anita Loos, there is a scene in which the little child appears. The dramatic action demands that he be the character portrayed by Miss Harlow and Gable. Director Sam Taylor, trying to figure out the best way to elicit such an identification, decided it was necessary to use a child who had the outstanding characteristics of the co-stars. The casting office sent out a call which was responded to by more than a half hundred anxious mothers with sons of all sizes and descriptions, each insisting their child was a dead-ringer for Miss Harlow and Gable. Little Bobby Burke finally won the part with his smile and hair, much to the chagrin of the friends of disappointed mothers who thronged the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offices with their offspring candidates. Included in the cast of "Hold Your Man" are Stuart Erwin, Dorothy Burgess, Muriel Kirkland, Gerry Hays, Elizabeth Harouless, Paul Hurs, Elizabeth Patterson, Theresa Harris, Blanche Frederici and George Reed.

"The Shadow" The product of the Twickenham Studios has always been distinguished by excellent casting, and "The Shadow" will certainly maintain this Company's well established reputation. It is being presented at the King's Theatre to-day. At the head of the cast are two film stars, Henry Kendall and Elizabeth Allan. Kendall will be seen in a part ideally suited to his great gift for the interpretation of "silly ass" comedy, and he also has a chance to show his talent as a dramatic actor. The name of Elizabeth Allan is new to a household word. She has now left to fulfil a big film contract in Hollywood, and "The Shadow" is made most interesting by the fact that it will be one of the last chances to see her in a British film.

Queen's Attraction Eight hundred and twenty hours of flying were necessary to film air battle scenes for "The Eagle and The Hawk," story of two wartime aviators who become heroes under the stimulus of their hatred for each other, which has its final showing at the Queen's. Frederic March, Cary Grant, Jack Oakie, who play the leading male roles in the film, between them rolled up about one-fifth of this total—enough to give each of them a fair start toward a flying licence. The remainder of the hours added to the already long records of a dozen members of Hollywood's "Suicide Squadron," organization of stunt pilots. The latter piloted the planes through crazy aerial manoeuvres required by the script.

"Night After Night" Equipped with an amusing ultra-modern story and a cast that would do honour to any film or stage play, "Night After Night," the screen version of Louis Bromfield's story "Single Night," will be shown from tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre. The film is an unusually palatable combination of sophistication and naivete. Each one of the characters follows that description. Joe Anton, the role played by George Raft, for example, is a pugilist, present spokesman for the habits of the regular tough, know-it-all insolent type that has been pictured so often in the films. But notice Joe with Miss Jollyman, the school teacher who comes every day to teach him how to talk like a gentleman. He is no more than a naive schoolboy, standing in humbling awe of the superior knowledge and culture of this dewy, middle-aged woman, who has never had any fun. There is The Lady, portrayed by Constance Cummings, perfectly poised, lonely, disillusioned, the perfect representative of that stratum of society which bases its conduct on appearances rather than fundamentals. But what happens to The Lady when in spite of herself, she falls—quite fundamentally—for Joe? Where? her sophistication then? There is also Iris (Wynne Gibson), the haribolled chorus girl who had originally taken on Joe for a good thing. Iris can take care of herself—she knows her way around! But how about the pathetic in her losing battle? Maudie probably has more life-knowledge than all the rest of them—Maudie whose role is in the extremely competent hands of Mae West. Maudie has lived longer than the rest of them. She's learned that most of the things that excite the others so much aren't really worth bothering about. So Maudie is good-natured, tolerant and honest. She alone has the patience to see that the school teacher, who, happily, is Allison Skipworth, gets the most out of her first night in a "speakeasy". These are the characters about whom centres the story of "Night After Night."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem

The contract for the following hand is four spades by North. East catches two rounds of clubs and leads a third club which you might ruff. But what is the correct play?

♠ K Q 10 9
♥ 3 2
♦ A Q 5 3 2
♣ 3 2

(Blind) N E (Blind)
♠ A J 7
♥ A 5 4

Solution in next issue. 23

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

Unfortunately, too many people allow honours to influence their bidding. I presume that the majority of my readers, if they picked up a hand containing 150 aces, immediately would open the bidding with at least one no trump. But this is not always correct.

Take, for example, to-day's hand. South has no advantage in opening the contracting with one no trump. He cannot possibly gain a trick by the opening lead. Therefore, if he is to receive any benefit from the timing factor, his partner must play the hand at no trump.

The Bidding
South West North East
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
2 diamond Pass 2 N.T. Pass
3 N.T. Pass Pass Pass

While I do not favour the bidding of a weak four-card suit, or of three-card suits, both rules must be broken in this hand. You do not want to play the hand at no trump in the South. If it is to be played at no trump, South wants his partner, North, to be the declarer.

Therefore, the bidding should be opened with a suit, hoping that partner's response will be no trump. When North responds with a spade that does not help at all.

Now try to fill his weak spot for no trump. You hold the ace and king of diamonds and undoubtedly he was unable to bid no trump, due to his weakness in diamonds. Therefore, you bid two diamonds. This is a constructive bid and there never is much danger of partner passing.

Now your partner, with the queen of clubs and the queen of

WOULD-BE THIEF
SENTENCED

"If he had any money on him, I would not mind being charged," said Lam Kau, unemployed, from the dock of the Central Police Court this morning, when he was charged before Mr. Balfour with attempted theft from a compatriot.

Sub-Inspector Kirby said that at 12.45 this morning, the complainant, Wong Kwai, was asleep aboard the steam launch San Hang On at the Praya, with the defendant next to him. He was awakened by defendant putting a hand into his pocket. He went off to sleep again and the same thing was repeated. Defendant was arrested.

The complainant stated that the defendant took a bill of sale out of his pocket.

Defendant was sentenced to one month's hard labour.

WINE SPILLED IN HARBOUR

HOW EVIDENCE IS DESTROYED

Two Chinese widows were brought before Mr. Balfour, at the Central Police Court this morning, and fined $5 each for the possession of half a pint of Chinese spirit on which duty had been evaded. The second defendant was further fined $50 for destroying evidence, by availing the wine over the side of their cargo boat, in the harbour.

Revenue Officer Grimmett said that immediately a revenue officer "shows his nose" at Yau-mai Bay the boat people spill the wine overboard. He had been after them several times in the Yau-mai anchorage.

The jar in this case was a "our-pail" one and only half a pint had been recovered.

SIR MANCHERJEE BHOWNAGREE

SECOND INDIAN MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT

London, Nov. 14. Sir Mancherjee Bhownagree, who was the second Indian to become a member of the House of Commons, where he represented Bethnal Green as a Conservative for many years, died to-day aged 82.

Sir Mancherjee Merwanjee Bhownagree was the son of a Parsee merchant of Bombay. In his early days a journalist, he succeeded his father in the Bombay agency of the Kathiawar state of Bhavnagar at the age of 22. In 1885 he was called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn and in 1886 the Maharaja appointed him judicial councillor in which capacity he carried out a number of important reforms in the state.

In 1891 he went to England and became leader of the Parsees in Europe. In memory of his sister he bore the cost of the eastern colonnade of the Imperial Institute in South Kensington. In 1895 he was returned for N. E. Bethnal Green as a Unionist—the only Indian except Naoroji to be elected to the House of Commons.

TRANSVAAL DISCLOSURES.

In 1897 he was knighted (K.C.I.E.). He was re-elected in 1900 and sat in Parliament altogether for 10 years, during which period he made many telling speeches on Indian questions and acted as champion of the Indians in South Africa and other British Dominions. His exposition of the case of the Indians in the Transvaal was embodied in a blue book in 1904 and was sent to Lord

HARD TO TRACE MUI-TSAIS

CHANGE OF ADDRESS PROBLEM

For having failed to notify her change of address to the S. C. A. as an employer of a registered mui-tsai, Yuen Fung-shi, a married woman, residing at No. 2, Prospect Place was fined $15 by Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning.

Sub-Inspector Fraser, of the S. C. A., said a lady inspector was visiting mui-tsais at 590, Queen's Road West and inquired for the whereabouts of this registered mui-tsai. It was then discovered that the defendant had removed to Prospect Place in 1931, and that the mui-tsai she employed had not been visited since that time.

There were still quite a large number of girls whom the S. C. A. had failed to trace, owing to their employers not notifying their change of address.

The Royal Observatory reports that the eastern portion of the anticyclone has weakened, and pressure is now highest over North China. Forecast: N.W. winds, moderate; fine.

Milner by Alfred Lyttelton, the Colonial Secretary, with the remark that it would be difficult to answer the charges made. The outcome was that some important proposals of the former were rejected.

Bhownagree was one of the first Indians to urge the necessity for technical and vocational training for Indians, holding that they were too apt to confine themselves to a literary education. During the war he replied to German propaganda against British rule by writing a pamphlet "The Verdict of India." He also wrote a history of the East India Company—British Wireless and Special.
